Trucks Escorted By Cops in Strike

At least two trucks pulled out of Boston today under police escort following the first outbreak of violence in strike of 4500 Greater Boston AFL truck drivers.

The incident occurred after a deadlock in the first arbitration meeting and it was made known that no early settlement of the walk-out was likely. Escorts were provided when, in an otherwise picket-free strike, a truck load of dry goods bound from Portland to Providence was reported ordered off the road.

Driver of the truck Walter Small, 22, Westbrook, Me., and his lumper, Robert Welsh, 37, Portland, Me., driving an Inter-State Trucking Co. rig, said five men boarded their truck at Seabrook, N. H.

3 FOLLOW IN AUTO

Small said the picket ordered him to drive to the Boston garage of the company and not to attempt to deliver his load to Providence. After phoning his superiors, Small agreed to drive his truck to the Boston garage.

While two of the pickets traveled in his truck, Small said, the other three trailed close behind in a private automobile.

At Boston the men told Small: "Leave this rig here and go back home by bus."

Terminal manager Fred Gudreo at the Chesterton st., Roxbury, garage, told Small, however, to take the truck to Providence as he had contacted Boston police and they would provide an escort to the Dedham line.

Police said two trucks were escorted from the Chesterton st., garage after Small's truck arrived.

Meanwhile New England railroads placed an embargo on less-than-carload freight and industry felt the first paralyzing effect of the strike.

Representatives of employers and labor and M. I. T. Prof Douglas W. Brown, mediator named by Gov. Bradford, declared nothing had been accomplished at the first attempt at arbitration and no further conferences would be held till Tuesday.

FREIGHT PILES UP

The Boston and Albany railroad announced that the embargo was necessary as freight was piling up at terminals since the start of the strike three days ago.

The Boston and Maine in addition to the less-than-carload embargo, clamped down on all carload and less-than-carload freight for freight forwarders at Boston, Cambridge and East Cambridge.

In the meantime the strike continues with 1500 of the 1600 strikers agreeing to move essential goods such as food, fuel and medicines. The Boston and Maine said they would accept freight for the armed forces or any government organization.

From Indianapolis, headquarters of the Teamsters Brotherhood, came news that it had announced its full support of the strike. Daniel Tobin, international president, wired this decision to Nicholas P. Morrissey, New England union representative.

James V. Hurst, president of local 25, stated today that 30 independent firms had already signed new contracts with the union for a 40-hour, $60-week. This is the contract all truckers are seeking.

FEAR HUGE LOSS

Officials estimated that if the strike were prolonged it would cost industry many millions of dollars.

The State House session was called as the first test of the new Schlicter law by Prof. Douglas V. Brown of M. I. T., appointed moderator by Gov. Bradford under his emergency proclamation.

His duty is to bring the disputuants to arbitration or report to the Governor why he failed, he said. He added that the conference had opened the way for him to make a "thorough exploration of the possibilites for arbitration." He adjourned the session until next Tuesday morning.

"There were no comments by either side," Brown stated.

Meanwhile the union took great pains to abide by other provisions of the Schlicter law, which requires that the public health and safety shall not be endangered by interruption of deliveries of food, fuel and medical supplies.

House to Act Upon Quickie Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—A "quickie" tax cutting bill and a short-term foreign aid measure were marked for first attention in the House as Republican leaders laid plans today for the new session of Congress.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, coupled those two items with rent control extension and federal budget reduction as part of the early "must" program for the legislators convening Tuesday.

He said he expects the House to pass a tax reduction bill this month just to let the White House know what is on the way.

There are no plans for such rapid action in the Senate, where some Republicans and many Democrats favor delaying tax legislation until the federal fiscal picture is clearer.

The form of tax legislation and other major measures probably will be shaped next week by the GOP steering committee which blueprints House Republican policy. Martin himself favors a short-range foreign aid program as opposed to the four-year Marshall Plan proposed by the Administration.

He said Congress must act soon on rent control legislation, since the present law expires at the end of February. Indications are it will be extended with no major changes.

The speaker also urged a hike to 65 cents in the present 40-cents-an-hour minimum wage.

Cancer Ace Called Possibly for Stalin

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 3 (AP)—Prof. Elis Bervin, Swedish cancer specialist and radiologist, left by plane today for Moscow for "consultation on a serious cancer case."

"I cannot tell you who my patient is because I don't know myself yet," Dr. Berven told newsmen. He received a cabled request from "the Russian authorities."

Mrs. Berven said her husband had no idea how long he might be in Moscow. She added that his assistance had been requested "not for an operation, but only for consultation."

The Stockholm press, without citing any authority, speculated that Dr. Berven's patient might be Prime Minister Stalin.

Before the war a Swedish brain surgeon, Prof. Herbert Olivecrona, was called to Moscow for consultation under similar circumstances. Later it developed that he had performed an operation on a high Soviet official.

Hans Olov Berven, 20-year-old son of the Swedish specialist, said the sudden call of his father to Moscow was "fantastically mysterious for him and for us."

He said the cable from Moscow came on Dec. 31, and that it was signed by four Soviet physicians who had visited Stockholm and Dr. Berven's laboratories at the radium hospital early in December. The Soviet consulate promptly issued a Russian visa.

Asked whether the cable contained any information as to the patient, young Berven replied "nothing whatsoever."

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 3 (AP)—Sinclair Weeks, former U. S. Senator from Massachusetts and one-time treasurer of the Republican national committee, and Mrs. Jane Tompkins Rankin of Nashville were married today. The ceremony was performed at the home of a nacquaintance in suburban Belle Meade and was attended only by members of the two immediate families.

Abreakfast followed the wedding.

The ceremony was scheduled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bradford with Dr. William E. Phifer, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Nashville, officiating.

The bride-to-be declined to discuss plans for the wedding trip and the Massachusetts politician declined to come to the telephone. Her only statement:

"We will be at home at 282 Beacon st., in Boston, after Feb. 1."

Weeks, a former mayor of Newton, Mass., succeeded Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., as U. S. Senator in 1944. He was accompanied to Nashville by his son, and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hallowell of Milton, Mass.

A son, former Army Captain John W. Weeks of Belmont, Mass., is a patient in a Boston hospital and was unable to come here for the wedding.

Jews Attack Arab Village Near Syria

JERUSALEM, Jan. 3 (INS)—New violence flared in numerous areas of Palestine tonight following a Jewish attack on the Arab village of Safad, 10 miles from the Syrian border.

Fighting broke out in Jerusalem. Casualties were reported among both Jews and Arabs in the Jewish quarter of the old walled city.

Many houses were set on fire as fighting spread through the narrow streets.

Man Dies as Flames Sweep W. End House

One man died, two were overcome by smoke, and 12 other persons were rescued—six of them over ladders—when a two-alarm fire swept a four-story brick and wooden lodging house in Bowdoin st., West End, today.

The blaze, which fire officials said started from a lighted cigaret tossed into a baby carriage in the downstairs hallway, was listed as the worst of a series of fires, explosions and gas leaks throughout the city which drove scores of families into the stormy streets.

The Bowdoin st., fire caused damage estimated at $8000 to the building owned by John Deferrari, the millionaire ex-fruit pedlar who last September gave the Boston Public Library more than $1,000,000 to start a $3,000,000 trust fund.

Fifteen persons were trapped in their rooms when flames spiralled up the stairway, cutting off their escape. Several women stood at windows screaming for help when firemen arrived. They were rescued over ladders while others groped their way to safety over a rear fire escape.

N. H. MAN DIES

The dead man was Donald Turcott, 19, High st., Somersworth, N. H. Turcott's body was identified at the Northern Mortuary by his employer, Robert Doe, assistant manager of Patten's Restaurant.

Doe said Turcott was formerly in the merchant marine. He worked at the restaurant as a salad man. Firemen found him unconscious in his fourth floor room. He was pronounced dead at Massachusetts General Hospital.

The others hospitalized were identified as Roy A. Vanwart, 42, and Simon J. Harding, 73. Harding was treated for smoke inhalation and cuts at City Hospital. Vanwart was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital where he was treated for inhalation and second and third degree burns. Doctors said his condition was fair.

The rescued included the rooming-house operator, Mrs. Eva Doyle; her ward, Catherine Victoria Gould, 2½, and Gung Fong, ex-GI, and his young wife, Moy.

Cold Snap to Turn Hub's Slush to Ice

Highway crews battled today to clear away tons of slush in advance of a cold snap due to coat New England streets with glare ice tonight, as the latest northeaster roared out to sea leaving upwards of a foot of snow in the interior and a death toll of 14.

Meanwhile, the Weather Bureau was anxiously watching a fresh storm building up over the Canadian plains which may strike New England on Monday. Progress of the storm was being charted, but it was still too distant for forecasters to determine whether it will hit this area.

With skies clearing today the weatherman said the mercury would remain in the low 30s, but would drop sharply tonight to readings of 22 in the city and 10 to 15 in the interior suburbs.

Sunday is due to be fair, with temperatures again climbing just above the freezing mark and highways melting to produce slush for motorists and pedestrians.

Another high tide lashed by northeast winds beat against the coastline at 4 a. m. today, again flooding cellars, pounding seawalls on the North and South Shores, and flooding coastal highways.

Snowfall in this storm, third within 10 days, was spotty, sleet and rain making accurate readings difficult. However, the Weather Bureau estimated three to four inches fell along the coast, and six to 10 inches in most of the interior of southern New England.

As the Boston Public Works Dept. tackled the snow removal job, it was estimated the two storms during Christmas week cost the city $322,000. Cost of removing this storm's deposit may put the total figure near the half-million mark.

Storm-driven high tides inundated Wollaston Beach blvd. with two to three feet of water, ma-

Ex-Teacher Shot, Routs Gunman

SEABROOK, N. H., Jan. 3—Shot in the chest in a holdup attempt in his home early today, a 66-year-old retired teacher, now managing a small grocery store, seized a hatchet and struck the unknown gunman who escaped without loot.

In fair condition at Anna Jaques Hospital, Newburyport, after a lengthy operation for removal of the bullet was Charles Fogg Janvrin, South Main st., Seabrook, the ex-teacher. He was given a blood transfusion by his neighbor, Warren M. Eaton, 22.

Local police and authorities of Rockingham County later picked up a suspect who had gone to a hospital in Portsmouth, N. H., for treatment of a shoulder cut.

Janvrin, who retired as a teacher at the South Grammar School in June, 1946, after 30 years' service, told police he was awakened by the gunman at 2 p. m. and heard him growl, "This is a stickup."

Without a moment's hesitation, the ex-teacher continued, the gunman fired.

Janvrin disregarded the shock of the bullet in his chest, seized the hatchet and made for the gunman. He said he believed the gunman had an accomplice outside.

A bachelor living alone, Janvrin then dressed himself and waded through the snow to the home of his neighbor, Charles Warren Eaton, who called police. Eaton's son, Warren, accompanied Janvrin to the hospital.

Doomed Miner Sings on Gallows

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 3 (AP)—He was singing "I'm going to meet my maker" as the grim-faced witnesses filed into the execution chamber.

Finally all was set. First the noose was adjusted, then the black cap covering his head.

"Goodbye, fella," Deputy Warden Winter said.

"Goodbye, old boy," came a steady voice from behind the mask. "I'm going to heaven."

"I hope you do," Warden Skeen said.

The trap was released and Paul Burton, 33-year-old coal miner, who was convicted of the murder of Willard Simpson, 23, a fellow miner last summer, was executed.

Marines Assigned To Mediterranean Seen Anti-Red Aid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (INS)—The assignment of four additional detachments of U. S. Marines to the Mediterranean was viewed by informed sources today as an American move to give moral support to anti-Communist forces in Italy and Greece.

The Navy announced the four units of Marines from the corps' crack Second Division will leave Camp Lejeune, N. C., next Tuesday to augment personnel aboard four American warships off Italy and Greece.

Reliable sources declared the move provides first-hand evidence the U. S. intends to remain in the seething Mediterranean area as long as insurgent elements threaten trouble.

The four Marine units were assigned to the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Midway at Naples and to three light cruisers—the Little Rock at Piraeus, the Providence at Leghorn, and the Portsmouth at Genoa.

Although the Navy refused to reveal the actual number of Marines involved in the move, a Navy spokesman said the detachments would bring the complement of leatherneck landing forces aboard the four ships to above normal strength.

Normally, a carrier of the Midway class has an overall complement of 2200 men, including 100 Marines. A light cruiser usually carries about 1000 men, of whom 50 are Marines.

Both the Navy and State Dept. declined to link the transfer of Marines directly to the disturbances in Greece and Italy.

NLRB Charges ITU, 5 Locals With Violating Taft-Hartley Act

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board yesterday issued a complaint against the AFL International Typographical Union and five of its locals in New York, Detroit, Chicago and Pittsburgh, charging violations of the Taft-Hartley law in negotiations with some 500 commercial printing firms.

A hearing was set for Feb. 4 at NLRB offices here. The action is based on the complaint of five employer associations of printers.

The complaint embraces these accusations:

1—That the locals refused to bargain in good faith, insisting on a contract that would maintain their closed shops which are outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Act.

2—That the ITU and its locals restrained and coerced employes in job printing houses by insisting on a closed shop, thus infringing on employes' unhampered collective bargaining rights.

3—That the ITU and the locals attempted to force these employers to discriminate against non-ITU printers.

The union has 10 days to answer the complaint.

Should the charges be sustained by a trial examiner, the NLRB, it is explained, could order the union and its locals to bargain collectively with the complaining employer associations. The board is not empowered to take punitive action.

The complaints were made by these groups, representing commercial printers:

Union employers' section of Printing Industry of America, Inc., on behalf of New York Employing Printers' Ass'n, Inc. (printers' league section); Franklin Ass'n of Chicago; Graphic Arts Ass'n of Michigan, Inc. (rotary newspaper employers' division), and Printing Industry of Pittsburgh, Inc. (union employing printers' section).

The locals: New York Typographical Union No. 6, Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, Detroit Typographical Union No. 18, Detroit Mailers' Union No. 40, and Pittsburgh Typographical Union No. 7.

Young Wife Charges Jury Fix, Appeals Death Lure Sentence

Under sentence of death in the gas chamber for the "love trap" slaying of a California motorist, Mrs. Lois Hunt Hardy, 22, of Portsmouth, N. H., has sought a new trial in the California courts, it was reported in Nevada City, Cal., today.

The blonde wife of Joseph Hardy, 24, of Kittery, Me., based her petition on claims two jurors who convicted her of first-degree murder had been intimidated.

Defense counsel Lynne Kelly said he filed with the court affidavits from the jurors, Mrs. Angillina Falconi and Chester R. Peterson, in which they said in effect they were threatened during the trial.

Mrs. Hardy, married three times and a native of New London, Ct., was convicted of luring James W. McLain of Burbank, Cal., into an embrace while he was shot through the head by her husband last summer. He had given the couple a ride toward Reno, on a California highway near Truckee, the state said.

Her husband is due to go on trial separately without delay. He broke out of the Nevada City jail on the eve of his wife's trial and was free for three weeks until captured in Texas.

Back Bay Divorcee, 18, Held By R. I. Court on Bad Checks

A pretty 18-year-old Back Bay divorcee with a "charming personality" was arraigned in Providence district court today on three counts of violating Rhode Island banking laws by using checks without funds to cover them. Barbara Jee, Beacon st., the former Mrs. Barbara Lenz and mother of a 2-year-old child, pleaded not guilty and was held in $1500 by Judge Luigi De Pasquale for a hearing Jan. 17. Lacking bail, she was remanded to the women's reformatory in Cranston, R. I.

The young mother was arrested by Providence Police Lt. James J. Healey in Albany, N. Y., when she left a courtroom there after receiving a suspended sentence on a bad check charge.

CHARGE BAIL JUMPING

Healey, a detective, said her charming personality helped her pass worthless checks on Providence businessmen last Nov. 28. She was at one time a house-to-house magazine saleswoman, he said, and used her credentials in passing the checks, making it appear they were for subscriptions.

Barbara is also wanted by Cambridge police and authorities of Hartford, Ct., on bad check charges.

Cambridge police said she jumped $1000 bail set in East Cambridge court last April. A month earlier, according to Hartford records, she jumped bail there on a similar charge.

Police here said Barbara is not wanted by them on any charge but that she has used aliases of Barbara Gee, Barbara Patricia Shannon and Isabelle Merson.

DEPRIVED OF BABY

Barbara lost custody of her child last October when her ex-husband, George F. Lenz, Walnut st., Revere, won an uncontested divorce, granted by Suffolk Probate Judge John V. Mahoney.

Lenz testified that Barbara slapped him, broke his glasses and kicked him when he found her in their West End home with a strange man.

He also testified she once threw milk at him when he complained that the baby had not been fed. She told him, he said, that she did not want to care for the baby or live with him.

CONVICT'S HOSTAGES WON PLEA—Mr. and Mrs. George Bauer, of Canon City, Col., smile on learning that their 7-year-old son, James, is recovering after an emergency appendectomy. All were being held hostage by James Sherbondy, last of 12 escapees from Colorado's penitentiary, when the boy was stricken. They persuaded the convict to permit Mrs. Bauer to take the child to a hospital. He held Bauer and a 10-year-old daughter. Sherbondy was captured a short time later.

Son Arrested In Killing on Mother's Tip

STRATFORD, Ct., Jan. 3 (AP)—Police Chief William B. Nichols said today that a mother's tip led indirectly to the arrest of her 18-year-old son on a murder charge in the slaying of a Bridgeport printer.

The youth, Roger Ross, was arrested after Frank J. Denese, 40, a Bridgeport Post Publishing Co. employe, was shot to death last night while, police said, he sought to prevent the second burglary at his Lordship home in less than a month.

Ross, said Nichols, admitted he shot Denese, when two policemen found him at a near-by cottage trying by candlelight, to remove blood from head and face injuries.

When questioned by the policemen, Nichols said, Ross blurted out:

"I just shot a man up the street."

Ross had been sought for some time in connection with 11 burglaries in the Lordship section, including one on Dec. 19 when $241 was stolen from Denese's home.

Nichols said that the two patrolmen were sent to Lordship after Mrs. Bernice Ross had alerted police to her son's probable presence in that area.

Curley Tells Council Skyway, Bridge Plan

An Atlantic ave. skyway and a six-lane high level bridge to East Boston were advocated today by Mayor Curley in a farewell luncheon to the Boston City Council at the Parker House. The mayor said a Boston bank was willing to float the bonds for the $40,000,000 project, which he favored over present plans for a downtown arterial highway and another vehicular tunnel to East Boston, which would cost approximately $70,000,000.

Curley also said he would seek legislation for a payroll tax on all persons working in the city of Boston, which he estimated would yield $11,000,000 annually. He likewise plans to seek legislation for State aid to Boston and other communities.

He estimated the city's expenditures this year would be in excess of $7,500,000 over those for 1947 but anticipated a big building boom in the city.

Prior to the luncheon the Council, which has eight members retiring to private life, received without comment the mayor's veto of its approval of a midget auto racing track off Old Colony blvd., Dorchester.

The Council approved the proposal by a 12-6 vote last Monday and the following day the Mayor announced his intention of vetoing the order after Jesuit fathers had outlined plans for a new $6,000,000 Boston College High School in that area.

Retiring Council Pres. John B. Kelly, of Dorchester, was presented with a silver gavel by likewise retiring Councilor P. Austin Fish, of Dorchester, on behalf of the council.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 3 (AP)—Immigration authorities have three new problems on their hands today—a trio of French girls who arrived here by plane too late to make the Dec. 31 deadline for admission to this country outside the quota.

One of the three, Ferande David, was accompanied by her three-year-old son. She was to meet her fiance, Harold Skeegs, of San Francisco.

The other two were Anna Goch of Paris, bound for Fall River, Mass., and her fiance, Frank Marker, and Marthe F. Donas, of Montmorency, near Paris, who had hoped to meet her husband-to-be, Roy Morrison, in Atlanta, Ga.

Radio Plea Response Doubles Friend Ship Fund

A flood of contributions for the Yankee Friend Ship, which swamped telephone exchanges throughout New England, left 25 girls exhausted and raised $25,000 in one hour today, through a special Yankee Network radio appeal.

The program, scheduled to end at 12:30 a. m., was on the special instructions of the vice-president and general manager of the network retained on the air until 1 a. m. so great was the response.

Chamber of Commerce President Michael T. Kelleher watched the orgy of phone calls in amazement.

All he could manage to say was:

"This is the greatest demonstration of New England friendship that I have ever witnessed. In goods and cash pledged I think it is a conservative to estimate the total to be at least $25,000."

Before the broadcast the fund had stood at $30,00000 and was practically doubled within a single hour.

The Yankee Friendhd Ship—the 10,000 Anchor Line freighter Eucadia—docked at Castlde Island before noon today and id was being readied for loading M Monday.

Already 600 tons of food and clothing have been purchased and wait at Castle Island Terminal. The Eucadia is scheduled to leave for Glasgow on its mercy mission on Wednesday.

Guerrilla Guns Pound Greek Army

WITH THE GREEK Army West of Konitsa, Jan. 3 (INS)—Guerrilla artillery continued to pound government positions west of the Aoos river today, as Greek army troops braced for a possible rebel counterattack.

The guerrillas still hold the eastern bank of the river, facing government troops across the destroyed Borazani bridge. Thus far they have successfully blocked the main Greek government relief column, which is 11 miles east of Konitsa.

The guerrillas have forcibly recruited a number of young men and reportedly abducted 120 young girls between the ages of 18 and 21. They are believed to have taken them into Albania.

A stepping up of rebel "hit and run" tactics was indicated yesterday when a band of guerrillas swooped down on the town of Kilkis, 30 miles northeast of Salonika, fired the railway station and blew up a freight train.

Meehan, Brokerage Firm Head, Dies

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—Michael J. Meehan, 56, who rose from a messenger boy to a Wall Street financier with holdings estimated at from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000 in radio stock alone, died yesterday of pneumonia.

Meehan was ordered expelled from the New York Stock and Curb exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade after a Securities Exchange Commission investigation of his actions in connection with alleged rigging of the market in Bellanca Aircraft stocks.

Meehan, who came to know the financial district as manager of a theater ticket agency, established the firm of M. J. Meehan & Co. in 1920. His firm at one time had $2,400,000 invested in eight stock exchange seats and was the first to open a branch on an Atlantic liner.

A native of Blackburn, Eng., Meehan was brought to the U. S. as an infant.

Pauley to Give Grain Records to Senators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (INS)—Attorneys for Edwin W. Pauley notified the Senate Appropriations Committee today that they are ready to turn over to Congress the records of his grain speculation for the past two years.

Sen. Knowland (R), of California, said he understood the records will be delivered either late today or Monday.

Pauley, special assistant to Army Sec. Royall and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, had been notified to furnish the data to the Appropriations Committee by Monday.

The committee, investigating grain trading by Administration "insiders" is known to be eager to examine Pauley's accounts for the period during which he was President Truman's war reparations representative, with the rank of ambassador.

As Pauley's records were awaited, Knowland declared a high Administration official left Washington for two weeks after the Senator sought to question him about the grain market dealings of Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician.

In a hearing, Pauley has admitted he was in the market heavily at that time, but denied that he had access to any inside information about impending government purchases to guide his operations.

He told the subcommittee that he bought commodity futures "to protect myself and my family" by hedging against inflation.

Pauley testified he had liquidated most of his holdings since taking his Army Dept. post last September. He said that a wheat purchase made in his name later actually was by and for his employes.

Knowland said the subcommittee's staff experts will study the timing of Pauley's purchases in relation to government actions affecting the market.

At the same time, Knowland said that a subpoena calling for the record of transactions by Gen. Graham will be served on the White House aide's broker, Bache & Co., on Monday.

Meanwhile, Knowland is hoping to get in touch with Asst. Atty.-General John F. Sonnett, who reportedly ordered the Federal Bureau of Investigation inquiry into Graham's transactions. Knowland said he wants to know if the FBI has obtained information about other government officials.

Knowland disclosed that Sonnett left the capital yesterday after Knowland had telephoned the assistant attorney general's office and was expecting a call from him.

Amish Suit Brings Bishop's Farm Sale

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—The farm goods of Amish Bishop John W. Helmuth were to be auctioned today to satisfy a $5000 judgment obtained by Amishman Andrew J. Yoder, 33, of Wooster, O.

Bishop Helmuth, whose farm is at Wilmot, and four other leaders of the church were sued for $40,000 by Yoder who alleged he was damaged by a "mite" (boycott) imposed on him because he acquired an automobile, contrary to church rules.

He alleged that members of the church refused to deal with him, to help him with his crops or to eat at the same table, causing him expense and impairing his health.

Yoder testified that he acquired the automobile to transport his invalid daughter to medical treatment.

A forced sale of an Amishman's property is a rare event in this section.

Chicken Eggs Stand Tops in Test

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Scientific tasters who ate 81 kinds of birds' eggs announced today they found that chicken eggs still taste best.

Dr. Hugh B. Cott of the Cambridge Museum of Zoology, who directed the three-man tasters' panel, reported the results in the scientific magazine, Nature.

With 10 as the highest possible flavor rating, chicken eggs tallied 8.8. Turkey eggs were 7.2; gull, 7.0; crow, 6.6; duck, 6.5.

Wren's eggs, at 2.0, were lowest.

Among the small birds' eggs, only the house sparrow's rated high, 7.1.

Brookline Car Tows To Cost Owners $5

Brookline Highway Superintendent Daniel G. Lacy took a town by-law at its wording today and ordered 45 cars blocking action of snowplows towed away to garages at a charge of $5 each. Lacy said the total would have been higher but garages couldn't take more cars.

Timbermen's Strike Threat to Coal Mines

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3 (AP)—Twelve to thirteen thousand timbermen and sawmill workers in three states were ordered off the job today in a walkout which a union spokesman said would halt production of nearly one-fourth of the nation's coal miners in three weeks.

The strikers, members of the United Construction Workers, an affiliate of the United Mine Workers of America, produce mine props. They now average 78½ cents an hour, and ask an increase of 26½ cents.

Behind the Iron Curtain

History as yet untold . . . about what goes on in Eastern Europe today behind the Iron Curtain of Red intrigue, terrorism, violence.

A story untold, because it wasn't permitted to be told . . . until an ex-Premier of Poland, marked for death by the Russian OGPU, escaped through the Iron Curtain to the United States—to tell the truth about how Russia runs Poland, and plans to run the rest of the world—eventually!

No honest American will want to miss this truth-starred, frightening "inside" story of Poland's betrayal, by Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, ex-Premier of that unhappy country.

Boys Aid Nation By Joining JVA

Boys and girls can serve their country and community by enlisting in the Junior Victory Army. Among the latest to join are: James Despotopolus of Wyman st., Stoughton; Robert Lavoie, Burke st., Nashua, N. H.; Allan Jay, Burnett st., Jamaica Plain; Vivian Mattson, Pine View ave., Worcester; Skippy Carter, Holman rd., Auburndale; Herbert R. Pimental, Flint st., Fall River and Nancy Patch, West Dedham st., Boston.

With calls for service as great in peacetime as they were in war, more young patriots with leadership ability are needed in the Junior Army throughout New England.

One of the latest to join the Junior Army is the "Medford Mustangs" Corps under the leadership of its commander, Nunzio Abroma. Their latest report shows the well-planned, house-to-house canvass helped make the waste paper drive go over the top. All money collected from the drive has gone into war bonds and stamps.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to the Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin, well-wrapped, in your letter.

N. Y. Lifts Ban On Passenger Cars

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (INS)—The ban against passenger car driving in New York City was lifted at noon today by Mayor O'Dwyer amid indications that the severe storm crisis in the metropolitan area is ending.

The Weather Bureau added an optimistic note to harassed New Yorkers, who have been plagued by a series of snow, rain and sleet storms for over a week, by forecasting a snowless week-end. The forecasters said tomorrow will be sunny and warmer, with a high temperature near 40 degrees.

During the recurrent storms, utility lines and transportation were disrupted and dangerous road conditions prevailed.

In lifting the edict against driving passenger cars, the mayor requested the public to use the greatest precaution in driving "because of the uncertainty of the roadways." Many of them are still rutted or covered with slush and snow.

Cleveland Child's Death Seen Hit-Run

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3 (INS)—Lt. David E. Kerr, head of the Cleveland police homicide bureau, said today that the death of eight-year-old Sheila Ann Tuley "points definitely" to a hit-and-run motorist.

Kerr's conclusion contradicts that of Coroner Samuel R. Gerber who ruled that the child had been stabbed to death.

Solon to Demand Stand-Up Vote On Youth Training

By KENT HUNTER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Formal written request for an allocation of time to bring the Universal Military Training bill to the floor of the House on a "stand up and be counted" basis was being prepared today by Rep. Andrews (R.), of New York, chairman of the House armed services committee.

It will be on the desk of Rep. Allen, (R) of Illinois, chairman of the powerful House rules committee, Jan. 6, a day before the second session of the 80th Congress formally opens.

Copies of the letter will go to Speaker Martin, (R) of Massachusetts, and Majority Leader Halleck (R.) of Indiana.

"The armed services committee is for universal military training," Andres said. "We believe it is essential to national security.

"We offered the bill before the close of the regular session last July and, when the closing legislative log jam prevented action before summer adjournment, tried to get the bill up for consideration during the special session. Special session action was refused on the ground that only emergency aid to Europe could be considered at that session.

"Now I am going to ask for priority action on universal military training if the speaker, the majority leader and the chairman of the Rules Committee prevent universal military training from getting to the floor where the elected members may be recorded, the record will be clear as to where responsibility for furthr delay rests."

1 Dead in Fire

Smoke was billowing from windows and the trapped lodgers were calling for help when firemen arrived in response to an alarm sounded by a passer-by. A second alarm was turned in immediately.

After carrying six persons to safety, firemen made a check of all rooms in the building. The dead man was found on the floor. The flames were brought under control quickly.

In a Center pl., Roxbury, tenement block some 20 families were still homeless today as the result of a hot air explosion, a fire and a gas pipeline break.

Dressed in nightclothes, men, women and children tramped through the slush to a firehouse a block away where they were given refuge. They were barred from their homes today as repair men sought to fix the gas leak.

10 FLEE IN DORCHESTER

Ten persons were forced to flee a two-alarm fire in Maxwell st., Dorchester, which officials said was caused by a defective heater. Another heater exploded in an apartment in Green st., Charlestown, starting flames from which four persons were rescued by firemen.

Those saved were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Mrs. Margaret LeTerz and Mrs. Helen Hill.

Seriously burned in his vain effort to save his two children in a fire at their Rawson st., South Boston, home, Alex M. Costello, 49, died at City Hospital today while funeral arrangements were being made for his daughter, Mary, 13, and his son, Paul, 6.

Costello suffered third degree burns trying to push through a sheet of flame which had trapped the youngsters in their living room New Year's Eve. His wife and three other children survived.

Glamor for Eyes

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

DOROTHY PARKER'S couplet about girls and glasses is as dated as the year in which it was written. Today spectacular spectacles (mine are gold-framed) . . . designed to enhance the facial structure . . . are as high-styled as fashion and just as fashionable as a Dache hat or a Carnegie gown. And just as attractive, beauty-wise!

For glasses . . . and not the ones designed for drinking-out-of-purposes . . . can be an added attraction instead of a necessary disfigurement. The silly, false and dangerous vanity which kept poor-visioned gals from seeing the world through necessary and "rose-colored" glasses has gone forever. Now eyeglass frames may be selected with the same fashion astuteness one exercises in the selection of a suit or a coat.

The Hollywood stars make a fetish of wearing elegantly modish glasses and possess a wardrobe of frames to suit and match the costume and the occasion. Joan Bennett . . . one of the loveliest of the celluloid lovelies . . . with her glittering gem-rimmed ones was the pioneer of the pioneers in the film capital who sauntered forth in day or evening garb eye-glass accessorized.

LEATHER-FACED frames to match the motif of the dress is one of the new trends in smartening the look that looks through specs. Designed by Clairmont-Nichols . . . these moroccan frames (at right) prove conclusively that it is no fashion sin to wear eyeglasses.

It was Aurel Mangold, designer of spectacular spectacles for Clairmont-Nichols of New York, who instituted the idea of making eyeglass necessity an attractive accessory. A year ago he inaugurated the innovation. Today, the smartest women in New York . . . cover girls and modelling glamor-gals similarly subscribing to the idea . . . may be seen dressed in the height of fashion, their spectacles an integral part of their appearance.

SPECTACLE WARDROBE

We practically caused a furore when we walked into the city room of your favorite newspapers many months ago wearing our gold-framed specs . . . a complete departure from the old-time goggles. Today the girl who must wear glasses to see with doesn't try to make her specs invisible. She accents the visibility of the specs she chooses . . . whether they are for street wear or for glamorous evening attire.

And don't think men don't enjoy the fancy frames. They finger them and sheepishly ask: "Is there anything new for men?"

At a recent press showing sponsored by Clairmont-Nichols in New York . . . a conservative spectacle wardrobe was suggested to include two pairs of business glasses in different colors and designs . . . one pair of play frames . . . and at least one pair of high-fashion glasses for cocktail or evening. And no more hiding behind the supposedly invisible frames.

MATCH JEWELRY

Cocktail or evening glasses are sophisticated or sweet . . . depending on you. Black frames dotted with rhinestones and black rims with solid green or white rhinestone temples . . . may be worn smartly for a night on the town. To match jewelry . . . massive gold frames with half-inch wide temples are very chic. Gold or silver flecked spectacles catch each ray of light to send them dancing as you dance. Gold nailheads on deb frames are the model's choice.

If the bathing suits are going to be scantier from the chest to the chin . . . sun glasses are certainly going to be bigger and bolder than ever.

DETACHABLE lenses (shown directly above) for work or play . . . snapped in and out at will . . . are the newest innovation in making one pair of frames serve a double purpose. Clear or colored lenses may be interchanged with necessary frequency.

RHINESTONE-STUDDED lucite eyeglasses (shown at top, left) for after-dark glamor make jewelled eyes out of weak ones and spot the lady who wears them as a leading fashionist of chic individualism. Another of the spectacular spectacle series sponsored by Clairmont-Nichols of New York to rout the silly, false and dangerous vanity of some women.

WOODEN frames . . . smart for beach and resort wear, are equally good looking for business or sports clothes. The model seems to beckon a second glance with these eye attractions . . . that place fashion pride aside of poor vision.

One of the most unusual frames to hold calabar lenses . . . they were designed by Aurel Mangold for Clairmont-Nichols.

Simple Cooking Tricks Give 'New Look' to Stews

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

GIVE STEW a "new look" now and then—and new flavor, too—and you can add it to your list of weekly meat favorites. This good dish is made from the thriftier cuts of beef and helps considerably in cutting food costs.

The main ingredients of a good stew are tender cubes of meat and well cooked vegetables in rich gravy. You can vary a stew's flavor by using different herbs and spices, a variety of liquids and a wide range of vegetables. Or you can make stew look like an entirely different dish by varying the manner of serving.

STEW VARIATIONS

Meat: Beef, veal, lamb, or a combination of one or more of these. (Pork is not used frequently for stew.) Meat may be browned or not before simmering. Browning the meat makes a deeper colored stew, also gives the meat more flavor.

Liquid: Water, bouillon, tomato juice, tomato puree, vegetable juices or cooking water, or diluted canned soups.

Seasonings: Herbs, spices, onion or garlic (or both), celery tops, minced carrots, parsley. Dill seed and caraway seed make tasty stew seasonings.

Vegetables: Carrots, onions, and potatoes are used most often. To keep stew interesting, use many different vegetables—whole kernel corn, green beans, cabbage, tomatoes, peas, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts.

Ways to Serve: On rice, noodles, split biscuits, or split cornbread. Or top with dumplings. Or make stew into a meat pie by topping with mashed potatoes, pie crust, biscuit dough or cornbread batter.

Here's one of these ideas put into use—tomato herb stew served on rice:

TOMATO HERB STEW

2 lbs. beef or veal stew meat
½ tsp. marjoram
¼ tsp. thyme ½ clove garlic
1 can tomato puree
3 cups water Onions, carrots

Cut meat into 1½-inch cubes. Flour meat and brown thoroughly in hot lard or other fat. After browning, sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Mince garlic and add to meat with herbs, tomato puree and water. Stir well, bring to a boil, then turn heat low and simmer, covered, for 3 hours for beef, 2 hours for veal. 45 minutes before done, add 5 sliced carrots and 5 or 6 small onions, along with a teaspoon of salt. Thicken liquid, if desired, with a flour and water paste.

GROUND BEEF LAYER PIE

1 tsp. salt 1 lb. ground beef
1-8 tsp. pepper ¼ cup catsup
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 egg 2 cups bread dressing

Make bread dressing seasoned with minced onion, and celery, and a little sage. Combine meat with beaten egg, seasonings, and catsup. Press half of meat mixture into greased casserole. Cover with bread dressing and rest of meat. Set in pan of hot water and bake uncovered in a 350 deg. F. oven for 45 minutes. Cut into pie shaped wedges and serve with gravy made from meat extract.

Hewitt Debut Party Tonight

ONCE IN A BLUE MOON there is a party which inspires some of our Boston belles to break out in glorious elegance. Forsaking the somber little numbers so dear to "proper Bostonians," they emerge in creations rivalling any seen at court functions or in Paris.

Such a party was the last dance given in the grand ballroom of the Copley Plaza by the Copley Club, a group of young-marrieds, post-debs and eligible bachelors.

In fact, one of the most breathtaking gowns, worn by Mrs. Paul A. Ross, was flown from Paris. A Jacques Fath Original, it was a Christmas gift from her husband and she had saved it for the party. Of cabbage-rose marquisette, it frothed from under panels of lacy paradise plumes in the same luscious rose shade. The low neckline was partly veiled in a voluminous matching stole. Mrs. Ross, incidentally, in 1945, was the first American bride since the war to wear a Paris wedding gown specially designed for her by the same designer.

ANOTHER picture gown was worn at the dance by Anne Greiss. Made of black lace and tulle, cut off-the-shoulders, it was encrusted with pink roses on its black taffeta petticoat, which gleamed under layers of tulle and black lace.

Mrs. Edward Mahony (Pat Eames) also looked like a portrait in pecan satin, studded with bronze sequins, with an off-the-shoulder pleated collar.

Darby Almy wore a black tulle ball gown which had a cameo neckline, and other stand-outs were Mrs. Laurence Morgan (Anne Clark) in a green-and-white print long-sleeved dinner blouse with a black hobble skirt; Post-deb Rosemary Kunhardt in black tulip satin with ballerina skirt; Mrs. Percival Gilbert, Jr., in long-waisted ice-blue satin, and Mrs. Charles Collins in a full-skirted, sheer, black broadcloth dinner suit, ankle length.

MARYLEMOINE HEWITT will make her debut tonight at a dance given by her father, Mr. Clinton R. Hewitt, at Longwood Towers. Marylemoine, a pretty girl with elfin charm and musical talent, has chosen to wear a gown of wood-violet slipper satin which has a side bustle and an off-the-shoulder neckline. Her flowers will be white orchids circled with white ostrich plumes.

MRS. PAUL A. ROSS
Her Gown Flown From Paris

James Walker will head the ushers, who will be George Holland, Jr., Samuel Waugh, John Dietz, Robert Waugh, Hanzen LeBurton Page and Samuel Clapp. Their partners at the ushers' dinner preceding the dance will be Patricia and Margaret Ellen Burke, Sally Jane Brown, Marlena Peterson, Anna G. Simonds and June A. Knapp.

Decorations will be roses in pastel shades. Russ Kelsey's orchestra will play for dancing and Raphael will entertain with his accordion during dinner.

AFTER THEIR wedding reception this afternoon at The Country Club in Brookline, Patricia Jenney and her bridegroom, Henry L. Nielsen, will leave for a honeymoon in Cuba. For her going-away costume the pretty bride is wearing a two-piece ensemble in royal blue with hat to match.

Instead of a veil, Patricia is wearing a lace mantilla—a precious heirloom in the groom's family—and a gown of creme satin with Princess lace yoke and sleeves for the marriage ceremony in the First Parish Church, Brookline.

Her flowers are white camellias with stephanotis. The seven bridal attendants are all gowned alike in emerald green moire, with bustles and long sleeves. Mrs. William H. Stayton, Jr., the bride's mother, is wearing dove-grey crepe with satin insets while Mrs. Edwin B. Nielson, mother of the bridegroom, is gowned in royal blue crepe.

Patricia is a graduate of the Winsor School and a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. She'll be much missed in Boston, as the young couple will make their home in Fort Wayne, Ind., when they return Feb. 15 from their long wedding trip.

Churchill Improves, Wife Arrives in Africa

MARRAKECH, French Morocco, Jan. 3 (AP)—Winston Churchill, still suffering from a chill and bronchial condition that put him to bed three days ago, remained in his quarters this morning, although the hotel staff said he seemed almost recovered.

The 73-year-old war Premier, here writing his memoirs, caught cold on a painting excursion in the mountains. His wife and personal physician arrived last night.

Anti-Semitism Film for Keith's

"Gentlemen's Agreement," the Gregory Peck-Dorothy McGuire-John Garfield starring picture which the New York film critics have voted the year's outstanding motion picture, is soon to be seen on Keith Memorial screen.

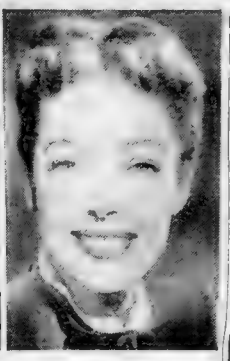
Peck and Garfield were cited for their excellent performances, and Elia Kazan was named the director of the year.

Produced by Darryl F. Zanuck for 20th Century-Fox, "Gentlemen's Agreement" is adapted from Laura Z. Hobson's best-selling novel by Moss Hart. It frankly faces the facts of anti-Semitism.

Continues Record Run

The average American's fear of being thought sentimental is proverbial and possibly the reason why so many people assume a "taking the children to the circus" attitude in going to see "The Student Prince," which moves into its final week at the Opera House next week.

THE TYRONE POWER-starring "Captain from Castile" and the Helen Forrest-featured stage show are remaining for a second big week at the RKO Boston Theater.



THE ASTOR Theater hit the jackpot in business New Year's Day, and naturally, since "The Bishop's Wife" (charmingly impersonated by Loretta Young) is the current film attraction.

NEW BILL FOR BEACON

"The Dark Corner" and "Western Union" are due to open a four-day run on Beacon screen tomorrow. Continuing through tonight are "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" and "Last of the Redmen."

HOPE HIT TO MODERN

Bob Hope's comedy hit, "Where There's Life" in which Signe Hasso and Bill Bendix are importantly featured, moves to the Modern screen tomorrow. "Adventure Island," starring Rory Calhoun, will be the co-feature.

New Third Symphony to Be Introduced

At the twelfth pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Symphony Hall Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, Serge Koussevitzky will introduce the new Third Symphony by Walter Piston.

This is the symphony which the Koussevitzky Music Foundation commissioned be written for dedication to the memory of Mme Natalie Koussevitzky. It was completed last summer.

Prokofieff's First Violin Concerto will be performed by Isaac Stern, the young violinist who is to make his first appearance with this orchestra. The San Francisco-born Stern, who is 26 years of age, studied there with Naoum Blinder and in New York with Louis Persinger. He made his first appearance in Carnegie Hall in 1943. Dr. Koussevitzky will close the program with Brahm's Second Symphony in D major.

He Tried to Make It Snow in Florida

Leon Steps into Plane with Sack of Dry Ice

Didn't Take—Bob Leon, former GI pilot, takes his plane up 12,500 feet over St. Petersburg, Fla., and, in an attempt to make it snow on the southern city, disperses dry ice (above) in a cloud. The stunt, sanctioned by the city, proved unsuccessful.

Fire, Explosions Raze Chicago Acid Plant

Destroyed—Dense smoke rises above the acid processing plant of Armour & Co., Chicago, Ill., during extra alarm fire which destroyed the South Side structure. Thick fumes and explosions hampered firemen in their efforts to quench the flames. Damage was estimated at $150,000. Extreme cold weather and icing conditions caused minor injuries to several of the fire-fighters.

LET CONGRESS GET FACTS

IN THESE DAYS of impudent bureaucracy, it is timely to recall Grover Cleveland's formula of public service expressed in the phrase, "A public office is a public trust."

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson displayed bad manners and a worse sense of constitutional government in rudely rebuking the efforts of Rep. August Andresen, Minnesota Republican and chairman of the House Committee on Commodity Speculations, to ascertain whether Federal officials were using inside information for private speculation in the commodity markets.

At the time of the set-to, Congress and the public were having difficulty in untangling the truth from the barrage of detail submitted by Secretary Anderson in accordance with a joint Congressional resolution.

In view of the inability of the Cabinet member to produce the significant information promptly in summary form, it comes with ill grace for him to tell the chairman of a Congressional committee to "put up or shut up."

Since outsiders, including Congressmen, can't get official confidential information until it has been released piecemeal by Mr. Anderson, critics of the ethics of the Administration must necessarily act and talk on the basis of "information and belief."

Mr. Anderson's bad manners should not becloud the fact that former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, similarly acting on unofficial "information and belief," started the present chain of events by asking publicly whether Edwin W. Pauley and other Administration insiders had been speculating in the commodity markets.

Before the facts had been authenticated, Mr. Pauley, in a reply to Mr. Stassen asked in what role he raised the question.

Later Mr. Pauley admitted operating in commodities.

Like Mr. Pauley's first reply to former Governor Stassen, Secretary Anderson's rejoinder to Representative Andresen was in the nature of a diversion.

The public is interested in the truth, NOT IN THE INTRODUCTION OF RED HERRINGS.

Secretary Anderson dogmatically connects Mr. Andresen's charge against 200 unnamed Federal employes with a list of 100 which he is publishing among others.

There is thus no meeting of minds.

It is conceivable that the Congressman's alleged violators of good ethics if they actually exist may have appeared on previous lists, and may have concealed their identity by acting through dummies.

The right of Congress to ferret out the truth is not limited by a Cabinet member's arbitrary notions concerning the rules of inquiry.

This newspaper does not purport to know precisely what the Congressman had in mind, but it defends the unlimited right of inquiry.

Facts already conceded indicated that the situation is not all smoke, but that there also is some fire.

VITAL TAX CUT

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS reports that "wholesale prices are edging nearer the all-time crest of May, 1920, and the Government economists say they can find nothing to indicate that 1948 prices will stop there."

The Massachusetts Senator and Representative who heeds that warning will not hesitate to vote for a Community Property law as soon as the Legislature convenes.

A Community Property law, enacted without delay, will reduce Federal income taxes more than $100,000,000 a year in Massachusetts and give the people that much additional protection against ruinous inflation.

Any Senator and Representative who opposes the Community Property law will add $100,000,000 to the cost of living in Massachusetts and he must accept the risk of being called a contributor to inflation.

Take time, my dear, ere time takes wing,
Beauty knows no second spring,
At twenty-five is woman's eyes
Beauty fades, at thirty dies.
BROOKS.

ABOVE WAS WRITTEN 175 years before so many means for the rejuvenation and preservation of feminine beauty had been originated. Now all females enjoy a "second spring." Many enjoy a third spring. One New York socialite, now over 70, is trying to enjoy a fourth spring. This is asking too much of the rejuvenators, but you have to admire the old girl for trying.

LIMPETS, ETC: Some limpets, small mollusks, are born males and later in life change to females and become mothers. Some years ago, Syd Chaplin, brother of Charlie, expressed wonderment as to what would happen if both men and women could have babies. He thought some heated arguments might arise between man and wife as to which would have the next baby.

PASSING BY: Margaret Sullavan. The only two "a" Sullavan to become a movie star. Remember the old song, "I Was Born in Virgina"? Margaret can sing it and she won't be kidding. She's from Norfolk. Is 36 and has been married three times: once to an actor, once to a director and once to an actor's agent. Her current marriage is reported about to go on the rocks. Margaret should try marrying a doctor next time. They seem to make fine husbands for actresses. A doctor is so much interested in his own activity he hasn't time to become envious of his wife's career. And absence of envy of each other is certainly an important factor in the success of Hollywood marriages.

ASKING: Queries from clients: Q—Ever hear of a horse named Ethelbert? A—Have heard of that noble animal but never saw him in action. Was before my time. He was usually ridden by Danny Maher. That was around 1900. When your grandfather was a young fellow and singing such popular songs as "Casey Would Waltz with a Strawberry Blonde," "Two Little Girls In Blue" and "Play in Your Own Backyard." Q—What color dress was it that color psychology expert said would put a boss in good humor? Am thinking of asking for a raise in salary, or should I say rise? A—Answer is a blue polka dot dress. Incidentally, the color psychology experts say when a school teacher wears a yellow dress her pupils are generally easier to handle. When I mentioned this before, one school teacher tried it. She reported it worked.

PLEASE NOTE: Several New York policemen officiated at blessed events during the height of the blizzard when getting to the hospital or finding a doctor was practically a hopeless task. All the babies delivered by policemen are doing fine. One father asked the young officer where and how he learned to deliver a baby. "From a book," said the cop. Young husbands and men about to marry should get a copy of that book. Maybe when a blessed event is imminent at their house they may not even be able to find a policeman.

SIDELIGHTS: James J. Braddock, once champion boxing heavyweight of the world, weighed 17 pounds at birth. Some bouncing baby boy was Jim. Average child weighs seven pounds at birth . . . The favorite name for hairdressers, hair-do experts, etc., seems to be Charles. But I don't know why. In Manhattan's elegant East Eighties there is a hairdressing establishment named Charles & Son. That is an unusual case of following in father's footsteps. Hairdressers rarely encourage their sons to be hairdressers.

THE ENGLISH DIARIST John Evelyn (1620-1706) lived to 86 years of age in a period when the life expectancy of the average person was about 35 years. Evelyn followed a diet and system of living furnished him by a Swiss physician who claimed it would enable a man to live 100 years. I read that in a Geneva newspaper. However, the diet and system of living mentioned were not detailed. I may check through Evelyn's diary to find out about this. I say "may" because the old boy's diary covered 70 years of his life and is indeed a monumental work.

VANISHING BREED—Just talking to an owner of thoroughbreds who loves horses. That is a rapidly vanishing breed of race horse owners. This owner races his horses three months and then turns them out on his farm for three months. There in the green pastures the thoroughbreds are permitted to roam at will and enjoy themselves. At the end of three months they go back to the races refreshed and craving for action. There should be laws prohibiting the continuous racing of thoroughbreds.

"I do hope you won't mind my knitting, so I won't feel the evening's been wasted!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE FOLLOWING is as much of an article printed in the Tagliche Rundschau, published in Berlin Oct. 15, 1947, as I have space for in this column. The article speaks for itself—and it ought to speak out loud to Americans:

George Sokolsky

"THE YOUTH OF TWO WORLDS

"'Young man, 20, healthy and robust, seeking any kind of position. Any offer accepted.'

"'Discharged soldier, 23, completed high school education, ready to accept any kind of work, even that of workshop apprentice.'

"'Girl, 21, single, capable in accomplishing any kind of work, seeks occupation no matter what kind.'

"The American newspapers are jammed with such ads. They can be seen on many gates, exposed on poster-columns and on placards carried through the streets of all towns of the United States by numbers of weary and prostrate young people.

"The doors of the factories, in front of which crowds of unemployed are gathered continuously, among whom are many juveniles, bear big posters with the concise words: 'No employment.'

"There is no work, no means of existence. How to find only a way to start, how carry on to make a living, how build a future? These are the questions which steadily torment the youth in the countries of capitalism.

"IN ITS VERY SUBSTANCE, the capitalistic system is exclusively concerned with the interests of a small group of society. A group of people who, holding in their hands all the capital and means of production, live through the exploitation of the great majority of the population.

"This privileged class have plenty to eat, dress well, live in nice, comfortable homes and are dominated by an ever growing greed for profit. They are surrounded by faithful servants sitting in the State Department, always ready to please their masters for a small and modest alm. Faithful and devoted to the bourgeoisie, they keep careful watch on their wealth and welfare. They are their pliant tools and assist them in fattening their purses, in exploiting the working man, getting rich at the hard expense of the misery of an immense stratum of the population.

"The working youth in the capitalistic countries have no present, no future. From the very first day of independent life, the spectre of hunger and starvation hangs upon them as a dark menace.

"IN THE HOSTS of millions of America's unemployed, there are today many of minor age who, forced by misery, wander about the towns all day in the vain search for employment."

(Here a few Russian employment advertisements are cited). "These are the ads which fill the newspapers, the shop windows of Soviet Russia. Everywhere they can be seen, in the street cars, in the subways, in the railroad stations all over the Union. In all factories, all construction plants throughout the country, there is need for labor hands, engineers, technicians and employes. Working power is scarce, and therefore there is a widely expanded net of schools and institutes for the education and training of specialists in all branches and all grades of activity.

"There are, in the Soviet Union, over 800 universities, filled with hundreds of thousands of boy and girl students. In this one year alone, 180,000 students have been admitted to the different colleges and institutions. And how many girls and boys learn in the various schools and training courses! Over half a million people are going to enter this October the agrarian schools, where they will be instructed in all branches of economy and agriculture.

"WHILE IN SOME capitalistic countries part of the youth are excluded from political life by age limits, ownership census, (property census) etc., all citizens in the socialistic state who have reached the age of 18 have active voting right and at the age of 23 are eligible for election.

"The youth of the Soviet Union feel solid ground under their feet; they are not afraid of the days to come. They are, on the contrary, looking forward to each new day, because every new day brings them closer to the realization of the dream every boy or girl cherishes.

"For youth, the socialistic Soviet order has opened wide the gates into the future."

Hollywood

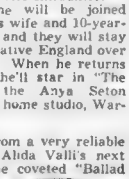
By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3 (INS) —Claude Rains and his family arrived in town from his farm in Pennsylvania a few days ago. I don't know any actor who has his plans laid out as far in advance as Monsieur Rains. He's such a good actor, the line forms to the right for his services.

He leaves for England after he finishes "Abigail, Dear Heart" at Paramount on a loan-out—of course, from Warners. In England he'll make a picture for Ronald Neame, producer and director of "Great Expectations" and "Brief Encounter."

In May he will be joined abroad by his wife and 10-year-old Jennifer, and they will stay in Claude's native England over the summer. When he returns in the fall, he'll star in "The Turquoise," the Anya Seton book, for his home studio, Warner Freres.

I HEAR from a very reliable source that Alida Valli's next picture is the coveted "Ballad and the Source," Rosamond Lehman's fine novel.



Alida Valli

I am told that Walter Wanger was able to borrow her from David Selznick, and that, I would call great luck, for to me she is the most exciting personality discovered this past year.

I tried to check the story with David and Walter, but both were out of town for the New Year, and I don't want to start off the year with a battle with either of them. Later, all right—but the year is too new. So if it ain't true, I'm not even sorry. I think she'd be wonderful for the part.

LYNN BARI, glowing with health and prospects for the New Year following her recent reconciliation with Sid Luft, was on the Eagle-Lion lot today.

She signed a contract for "The Spiritualist," first picture she's made since her marital trouble. Lynn lost a lot of weight during the separation period, but has now recovered the missing poundage plus all the original curves. She and Sid have taken a new apartment in Beverly Hills and are starting all over again.

Cast with Lynn is Turhan Bey, who plays an unscrupulous spiritualist. The picture starts production next Tuesday with Ben Stoloff producing and Bernard Vorhaus directing.

I HAVE BEFORE ME an excerpt from a signed article by Charles Chaplin titled, "I Had Enough of Hollywood," published by Reynolds News in London. In part, he says:

"I, Charlie Chaplin, declare Hollywood is dying. Before long I shall perhaps leave the United States, although it has given me so many moral and material satisfactions. Hollywood is now fighting its last battle and will lose that battle unless it decides once and for all to give up standardizing its films . . . unless it realizes that masterpieces cannot be mass-produced in the cinema, like tractors in a factory. I think objectively it is time to take a new road . . . so that money shall no longer be the all-powerful god of a decaying community."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Now I ask you—what goes with John Carroll and Lucille Ryman? I hear these two are trying to adopt a baby and yet every time I check with them they deny they are married. Well, I got news for them. Unmarried couples can't adopt a baby.

If they are married, and I am convinced they are, why don't they admit it? John is always introducing Lucille as "Mrs. Carroll" and she refers to him as "My Husband." Those days of actors not admitting they are married because it might hurt their fan following went out with Francis X. Bushman.

When I last interviewed Peter Lawford, he said he wouldn't think of getting married until 1951. But he didn't tell me that the new contract he has just signed with MGM has a clause in which he agrees not to marry for three years!

Yet, Pete, who can certainly start the pitty-pats in teen-age hearts, has a brand new deal with his home studio that calls for a hike in salary plus a bonus.

I suppose his wide-eyed fans will be delighted over the marriage clause, but it's discouraging to the belles of Hollywood who might have a matrimonial eye on young Lawford.

Now, after all, how can I cast a picture for a producer of Alfred Hitchcock's ability? Yet Albert Margolis wires me from New York that the start of Hitchy's "The Rope" has been delayed because of the difficulty in casting an actor for the role of Brandon.

Hitchy can't go to New York to look over the current crop of young stage actors, so Mr. Margolis feels there must be one in Hollywood who can fill the bill, and asks me to find him. Boys, don't all write at once, because you know, and I know, that when Hitchy does start "The Rope," he'll make his own selection, and with one word from LOP—he'll do as he pleases.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Johnny Meyer and Janet Thomas started the new year by kissing and making up. Yes, they were at Mocambo together as happy as happy can be.

Vera-Ellen, whose divorce became final two weeks ago, is now the girl most likely to succeed in the affections of Rory Calhoun.

Vera-Ellen

Ella Logan is a pneumonia victim, complicated by recurring virus infection she picked up in Germany during the war.

Margaret O'Brien's Aunt Marissa, an expectant mother, was rushed to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital a few days ago.

From New York comes word that George Sanders is now seeing a Miss Bamberger, one of the richest girls in Argentina.

Vincent Lopez, famed orchestra leader, is coming to Hollywood to live. Vincent, 'tis said, has a romance with a very rich heiress.

Oh dear, is this a press agent's dream or Kathryn Grayson's own idea? She's asked the MGM designer Helen Rose to create an entire new wardrobe for her to harmonize with her new home.

John Hodiak has been invited by Bing Crosby to participate in the annual Carmel golf tournament, and that's a compliment, believe me, because Crosby only picks winners.

Dwight Deere Wiman, the New York producer, is in Hollywood to see his new granddaughter, born last week to Mrs. William Carter.

David Niven sends word he'll return from England Feb. 9.

Mary Livingston has been very sick with flu and was unable to attend any of the New Year's parties.

Among those who entertained New Year's night were the Sam Goldwyns.

Albertine Rasch (Mrs. Dimitri Tiomkin), stricken suddenly with the "mystery malady," was rushed to the hospital and underwent abdominal surgery—believed to be just in time to save her life.

That's all today. See you Monday.

My Boston

FOR YOUR INFORMATION: The USO, which did so much to entertain you (or your boys) during and after the war, expired on New Year's Eve. It is being replaced by the Veterans Hospitals Camp Shows. Unlike the USO, the VHCS will not be supported by public drives but by contributions from all the unions in show business. The board of directors will be the same, with Abe Lastfogel general manager of the William Morris booking agency, as head. Abe refused a commission as a general in the Army during the war . . . At the Music Box on New Year's night we encountered Mickey Alpert, Boston band leader, and learned he is now at the Havana Madrid in N. Y. With Mickey was his brother, Herb, one of the lawyers in that Loew divorce and a former reporter on this newspaper. Also Horace MacMahon, the film actor, whom you should remember in gangster parts, especially as Preston Foster's cellmate in "Roger Touhey, Gangster." Horace came to Boston to interest Herb in the production of an independent film on the district attorney theme . . . From now on, you will see more and more of those dashboard meters in our taxicabs. One reason for the change is that passengers have frequently been hurt, banging their heads against the old meters.

OVERHEARD (during a political argument) at a local nightspot: "If Roosevelt was alive today, he'd turn over in his grave" . . . Com. Tony Tieso of the Disabled American Veterans requests all department officers to attend services tomorrow and Monday for Leon Waite, state adjutant and executive secretary, who died yesterday at Cushing Veterans' Hospital. The DAV will conduct services at Waite's home on Clark st., Lawrence, tomorrow at 7 p. m. The funeral takes place Monday afternoon . . . Milt Schmidt, Bruins' hockey star, and his missus are soon to introduce a little Schmidt to Boston . . . John (Buster) Gilbody, the sports writer, has written the lyrics for a song about the new look. It goes something like this: "You've got that new look, but I've got that old feeling; your skirt is nearing the floor, but my heart still hits the ceiling." Who would like to write the music? . . . And who owns that car that's been buried in the snow on the Trinity pl. side of the Copley Plaza Hotel since the big storm of last Friday? Well, whoever it is, he hasn't had it dug out, but he did borrow through the drifts and affix 1948 number plates! Yup, it's funny what some folks will do.

PICKED UP THERE AND HERE: Jim Aiken, Pabst beer man from Chicago, leaves for home today after two weeks vacation at the Statler. Jim was formerly heavyweight champion of the Navy, and (as "Prince Haleakali") champ of the Hawaiian Islands. He also fought a benefit exhibition at our Arena with Sharkey . . . Nathan Yeamans of Boston and Fall River has leased the Embassy Theater, Fall River, from William Purcell, and now has seven of the eight theaters in that city. He also has a drive-in at Dartmouth . . . Charley Moore, Hal Stevens and Walter Bayles of Gov. Bradford's secretarial staff, have been working with the Governor all hours of the night, helping on that coming message to the legislature . . . A new first act has been substituted in "The Men We Marry," since it opened at the Plymouth. But Lee Shubert, here to see "Power Without Glory," which his brother and he brought over from London, could find little to change except to point-up the last few seconds of the first act and the final scene . . . Memo to DeWitt Bodeen, author of "Harvest of Years": Thanks for your kind words stating that we correctly interpreted the theme of your play and your purpose in writing it.

LAST TIME we saw Paris? Josephine Baker, Negro star of "Paris Sings Again" tonight concluding its engagement at the Majestic, was in uniform as a lieutenant in the Free French Air Force during the war. She was ill in a hospital at Casablanca when America read of her "death," owing to the mistake of a newspaper correspondent . . . Josephine gave up a chance to fly to South America to remain in Paris at the war's start. Later she had to flee when the Germans stormed in. Her home near Bordeaux became a center of the underground, while the enemy occupied her chateau near Paris . . . The American singer made frequent secret trips through Spain to Lisbon to contact the British. Then she went to North Africa and knew all about the invasion by the Americans, long before it took place . . . She was the only woman to accompany invasion troops into Southern France. Later she was with the Americans, Canadians and British in the advance into Germany . . . "Paris is different, now," she says. But Josephine makes Paris sing again—at least on the American stage.

ODDS AND ENDS: The VFW wants our legislature to memorialize Congress to pass a housing bill, create a veterans' REC for home loans at two per cent, establish a national cemetery in Massachusetts, and build the world's largest air force, with an air National Guard . . . Fanny Kendall, Balinese Room pianist, says that the start of Leap Year finds Boston bachelors requesting these numbers most frequently: "That's My Desire," "Near You," "Heartaches," "Sophisticated Lady," "I Wish I Didn't Love You So," "Night and Day," "If You Were the Only Girl in the World," "If I Had My Life to Live Over," "How Soon," So Far" . . . The last meaning, we presume: "So far I've got away with this single stuff" . . . Beauty Editor Ruth Mugglebee informs us that the costumes of Irene Castle, famous dancer of our schooldays, are in a permanent collection at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in N. Y. And that people think they look much like the new look.

Persistent Biases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (INS) — This is not preaching. Rather, it is a prayer. a prayer that, during this New Year just begun, we'll learn a little bit more about discarding our prejudices and start judging each individual human on his own merits.

In a sense, it's a prayer for our survival—as the past year should have taught us . . . but more of that later.

All through the night, I've sat in front of an impotent portable, trying to write some copy about the coming session of Congress. I had all the notes and background. But I couldn't write it.

Hour after hour, two incidents which occurred during the day kept drumming into my brain—two incidents of raw racial-prejudice brutality which couldn't be forgotten. You know the type of thing.

For a while, I tried to ease my mind by remembering what progress this country has made in combatting such prejudices during the past year. But that was not enough. Eventually, I started going through wartime notebooks and clippings, seeking out factual ammunition with which to blast such stupidities.

There was plenty of ammunition, but the question was whether it would do any good.

FOR INSTANCE, why tell about the 100th Battalion—the boys of Japanese-American birth—in Italy? True, they had the fewest men surrender of any outfit along the Cassino line, the highest casualty rate and the most decorations.

True, they carried out their "go for broke" (shoot the works) motto to the hilt in combat—but would it do any good to talk about it now?

After all, no infantryman from Iowa, Minnesota or any other state, who fought in the 34th division in those days is likely ever to be guilty of discriminating against people of Japanese-American ancestry.

Nor do the boys from Texas and elsewhere who were in the 36th division's Lost Battalion in the Vosges Mountains need any reminder of the valor of the 442d (Japanese-American) combat team which brought them out safely at last—at such high cost to its own personnel.

And would the prejudiced people pay any attention, even if you told such tales? I don't know . . . Sometimes those prejudices stuck right in the face of graphic lessons during the war.

THERE WAS THE TIME at Anzio when some of us had been listening wearily and bitterly to a certain officer's tirade against Negroes. (Incidentally, he was a Northerner.)

Futilely, we pointed out that while he could sit comfortably in his comparatively bomb and shell-proof building, the boys in a certain Negro supply outfit were running ammo to the front, day and night, under terrific shellfire. It did no good.

Finally, one day there was a fantastic dogfight in the skies overhead. A German plane was shot down. Shortly afterward an American P-51 began to smoke and twist down crazily. A parachute bloomed out, and we rushed a boat to pick up the pilot from the bay.

He was a Negro. Did this convince the officer? No.

EVEN MORE embittering was the case of the Jewish lieutenant who, after being once wounded in the line and assigned to a safe rear area job, insisted on being transferred back to a rifle company. In his platoon was a private who kept smart-cracking about his commander, and wondering "how he ever got this far forward."

Ironically, there came a day when the lieutenant risked his life to save the private, who lay badly wounded, directly in the field of fire of a German machine gun postion. Did that prove anything to the private? only this: "You know, for a Jew, he's a pretty good guy!"

He seemed to feel that was a terrific concession.

Considering those incidents—and many others like them—perhaps it's useless to try to shake the prejudices of firmly-convinced people.

But we have made some progress along that pathway during the past year, and it may be we can make more during this new year just started.

We'd better, for—as was mentioned at the beginning—our survival as a great democratic nation depends upon it.

Maybe in this new year we can eliminate some of the rot.

DURANTE UNDER KNIFE

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3 (AP)—Comedian Jimmy Durante underwent surgery for removal of an intestinal tumor and the hospital reported his condition was "good." His agent said he is expected to return to his radio show Jan. 21.

Television Gains Manhood Stage; Aid to Sports

By AUSTEN LAKE

NEWS ITEM REVEALS that NBC spent $3,500,000 on television experiment last year and earned $800,000 in advertizing revenue. 149,000 television sets were sold and nine new telecasting stations opened. Today the mail brings an ad offering a knockdown, self-assembled television set, with fool-proof instructions, for a "trifling $155." So you might say that visual radio has emerged from its adolescent, pinafore stage and is approaching adulthood.

Efforts are being made by one telecasting company to monopolize the sport field by tying up the main events on long term contracts—major league baseball, college and pro football, title boxing. My information is that the Gillette Razor Co., leader in the sport broadcasting field, is toying with the notion of pioneering with the ether pictures a year hence.

SO IN A YEAR OR TWO Josephus Doakes, on his day off, will be able to sit comfortably at home before his crystal screen with no need to pay 85c to $2.65 to sit on major league slopes, coatless and tieless, perspiring the sunny hours away. If he wishes, the whole drama, with sound and scenic effects can be tuned in while he squats in a cool bathtub or enjoys a frosted glass on a shady lawn. It's no longer fantastic! Indeed, it was only 20 years ago that the talking radio and movies were deemed impractical. And look what a major nuisance they've become now!

Television, as I've watched it in various New York thirst parlors, has graduated from the dim, fuzzy, flickering shapes of moving figures seen as through a film of skimmed milk. A year or two ago there were static flickers like flying measle-spots on the glazed plate and the effect was like peering into a slot of a penny arcade. But now the images come with vivid clarity and you can buy a magnifying attachment which throws the action up to the size of the Boston American's front page.

Twelve years ago the major leagues faced the same perplexity with sound radio when it was a mere mewling infant of its present robust self. It made the owners nervous but they didn't take it too seriously and tolerated occasional broadcasts as an experimental teaser. They said, Pshaw, it was a fad which would expire within a year.

As I recall it was Judge Emil Fuchs who let the local stations bring in their nickeled nozzles and set up their coils and rheostats in the Braves' press box, to the vast annoyance of the typewriter boys who didn't like the distractions of the ether spouters and regarded the radio men as interlopers without rights in the sacrosanct purlieus of the press coop. The first broadcasts were made in the open, among the press shelves and the journalists sometimes shouted loud and uncouth remarks which carried through the mikes and out over the ether.

The first broadcasts were pretty bad too, and even Ted Husing, who was an unknown imported to Boston by WBET (Evening Transcript) from a tramp station in Brooklyn, didn't do so well. For Ted kept up an intermittable chatter about non-essentials beyond the center field fence, like the college crews spidering down the Charles, the N. Y. mail planes and the happy hollers of the kids on Magazine beach. It was 75 per cent hokum and 25 per cent baseball. So Fuchs, who gave away the broadcasting rights for nothing, said "Shux 'twont last." But it did. These same rights now sell annually at Fenway and Braves for $100,000!

JEERS TURN TO CHEERS

I THINK ONE MIGHT SAY that it wasn't until Fred Hoey came, from being a jobless drifter with a mellow, folksy voice that was easy on the ears, that baseball radio, from an unwanted stepchild became a salable commodity with gasoline, beer and cereal companies tumbling over each other to buy station time. And after him came Jim Britt, who has done a lucid, overall job too.

So, after 12 years, the magnates are unanimous in agreeing that radio has helped attendance, and even such hardshelled dissenters as Clark Griffith are converted to the belief that it stimulates interest in the hinterlands and among the ladies and brings week-end crowds motoring down to glare at the heroes who have only been names in the loud speaker funnels. And even the minor leagues which once yelped to Judge Landis that their clientele was being diverted from local parks to tune into major league doings for nothing, have come to regard the radio as a boon.

Second largest yelp came from the newspapers, who said they had pioneered baseball up from a nonentity to its present majesty and had given away fortunes in free publicity each summer with no gratitude from the magnates. And here, they said, was a comelately skimming the top off the bottle and leaving nothing but blue whey at the bottom. But newspaper roars too have dwindled to a mild whimper and even concession that radio has stimulated circulation by creating wider reader interest.

Personally I don't think that television, when it comes, will injure anybody. For your ball fan is the most voracious absorber of information in the world and the more he listens and sees the more he reads. The crumbs of radio merely whet his appetite for the more robust nourishment of the sport page. There is plenty of room for both and elbow space for television too.

Boxing Goes Into Tailspin

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The sharp plunge in gate receipts at boxing shows held in Massachusetts during 1947, as compared to 1946, has left the local boxing promoters in a serious situation. Figures released by the Mass. State Boxing Commission today show that there was a decline of $373,780 at the boxing cash windows over the good year of 1946. Another note on the commission's report is that 185,773 less persons saw boxing shows last year than in 1946.

In 1946, 673,205 persons saw boxing shows in Massachusetts and paid $1,200,164 for the privilege. Last year, 487,432 persons paid $826,384 to see boxing bouts.

It is evident that the Boxing Commission sensed this situation some time ago. During the past few months no less than 57 boxers have been suspended by the Mass. State Boxing Commission. Most of these boxers were dropped from the active rolls because of their failure to get into creditable condition for matches.

The public still has money to spend for boxing, but the public insists on good shows.

The State was the big loser because of the decline in boxing receipts. The State received $86,036 in boxing taxes during 1946. The latest total was $67,775. That is a decline of $18,360 over a one-year period.

The Andy Callahan A. C. was one of the few clubs to keep its figures on a plane comparable with 1946. The Callahan Club showed a drop of 11,470 customers and a decrease of $24,534 in receipts. The answer to this is that the Callahan Club has moved into the more spacious quarters of the chanics Buidding. The club ire-Garden-Arena rather than Me-ceived $198,664 in admissions in 1947.

The Goodwin A. C. was the big loser over the season, dropping from $422,584 in 1946 to $166,697 in 1947, a decline of more than a quarter of a million dollars.

The largest gate of the Boston boxing season was at the Damon Runyon Charity Show which was staged at the Garden by the Callahan A. C. The show drew 11,016 people who payed $31,388. The show was Grade A.

The number two show at the box office was the Goodwin A. C. production of the Lee Savold-Dooley Spagnolo match in March. The bout, a poor one, drew 9999 persons who paid $23,671.

The Fall River Casino A. A. drew $81,011 which was about $2000 short of a year ago. The Engineers Social Club, Worcester, drew $30,864 which was light $51,000. The Valley Arena in Holyoke at $76,581 was down about $25,000. The Springfield Sports, Inc., at $51,000 was also down about $25,000. The Salem Social Club at $38,000 was down $20,000.

Sports Leaders Pay Tribute to Fred Lane

Leaders in the world of sport, fellow sportswriters and a host of friends said a last farewell today to Frederick C. "Freddy" Lane, 52, sports makeup editor of the Boston American, who died New Year's Day in a fire at his home on Beachland ave., Revere.

FREDERICK C. LANE

The solemn high mass of requiem at St. Theresa's Church, Revere, was celebrated by the Rev. Edward Tangney with the Rev. William O'Brien serving as deacon and the Rev. Edward Walsh, sub deacon.

Daniel McGrath was soloist and Mrs. Stephen White the organist.

The church was filled to capacity with his many friends and fellow newspaper workers.

Military honors were accorded by the Georgetown American Legion Post, of which he was a member. He served as a chief radioman in the Navy in World War I.

Colors were trooped by the Legion members in the Church and a squad from Ft. Banks fired a volley at the grave in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Lynn. Fr. Tangney read the prayers at the committal service.

Honorary bearers were his close associates of many years in the newspaper world. They included Jack Conway, sports director of the Boston American; James P. Murphy, managing editor of the Daily Record; Matthew Keaney, assistant sports editor of the Daily Record; Austen Lake, Boston American columnist; Charles Mungie, circulation director of the Boston American, Record and Sunday Advertiser, and Joe Cashman, chairman of the Boston chapter of the Baseball Writers Ass'n of America.

Strand's 1500 Mark, Tying Hagg, Accepted

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Lennart Strand, Sweden's crack middle distance runner, was recognized officially today as co-holder of the world record for 1500 meters, the so-called metric mile.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation announced it had recognized Strand's time of three minutes, 43 seconds, turned in at Malmoe, Sweden, last July 15, as a world mark, equalling that established previously by another Swede, Gundar Hagg.

ESMASS GAMES OFF

Due to inclement weather, the Eastern Mass. Hockey League games were cancelled last night. Scheduled to be played at the Arena the schoolboys' four-game card was called off because of the fact that transportation difficulties presented such an obstacle.

Hyde Park Blanks Brighton

Hyde Park raised the Boston District Hockey League curtain impressively today by handing Brighton High a 3-0 setback before a handful of hardy spectators at the Boston Arena.

East Boston followed by drubbing Charlestown 6 to 2, and Roslindale completed the menu by flattening Brandeis 8 to 3.

Hyde Park took a two-goal lead in the second period. Bernard Brady soloed for the initial tally. Bill Curtin increased the lead when he blazed a 15-footer into the meshing.

The Roslindale-Brandeis tilt was decided in the first stanza when Roslindale took a 4-1 advantage. Foster Yeadon, Roslindale fleet left wing, led the onslaught with three goals, two assists. George Neumeier had two goals and two assists. Bob Salander, a promising 16-year-old, flashed the red light twice.

Brandeis made a determined bid to overtake last season's champs in the final frame. They enjoyed a two-goal surge by the half-way margin of the last period. Lanky Bob Flynn, who figured in all of Brandeis scoring, jammed home his second score at 3:45. His lamplighter was the most sparkling of the day. Flynn roared from the deep in his zone, pierced the defense, drew Joe Kelliher from the cage and flicked the disc in.

John Christopher sparked the East Boston offensive with a pair of goals and assists.

East Boston bolted to a 3-1 1st chapter lead and never relinquished it. Tony Arrigo was instrumental in East Boston's early rampage. Tony notched a pair of goals in the first canto.

East Boston added two more goals in the final period. Christopher figured in both. He was ably assisted by Bill Moran on the first and followed by pushing a perfect relay to Fred Matera in the closing stages of the game.

Ed Celata, who did all of Charlestown's scoring, both on unassisted efforts, was the only bright spot on the Charlestown squad.

Keller of Yanks Getting Checkup

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) – Charlie Keller, New York Yankee outfielder who was benched last season by a back ailment, arrived from his Maryland home today to undergo a physical checkup by Dr. Sidney S. Gaynor at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Looking fit, Keller said he weighed 185 pounds and felt fine, although he had not done any running since he was operated on for the removal of a broken disc from his spine in midseason.

B. C. Seeks Win Over Siena in Only Local Game

Playing the only local college basketball game this week, the Boston College Eagles will play host to little Siena College of Albany, New York, tonight, at Mechanics Building.

The B. C. freshman team will meet the Siena frosh in a preliminary game starting at 7:30 p. m.

Second in a home-and-home series, the Eagles will be trying to earn a split, having lost to the upstate New Yorkers, 58-50, the night after Christmas.

George Weber, Siena's captain, is the man the Eagles will have to stop. Al McClellan, B. C. mentor, has been working with his charges all week in an attempt to work out a defense to halt the six-foot seven-inch Weber, a consistent high scorer.

Leading the B. C. scorers is Danny Bricker, six-foot sophomore from the Bronx, N. Y. Bricker has scored 64 points in four games for a 16-point per game average.

Right on Bricker's heels for top honors is another New York resident, Tom O'Brien of the Bronx who has 63 markers in five games. Bricker missed the B. I. State opener which the Eagles lost.

FACES SIENA—One of two seniors on the squad, Phil Kenney of Boston College, will be meeting the Siena five at Mechanics Building tonight. The New Yorkers whipped the Eagles in a previous meeting.

Canadiens Keep Bruins In Race to Halfway Mark

As soon as the results of tonight's games in Montreal and Toronto are recorded, the 1947-48 National Hockey League race will have reached the half-way mark. Unperturbed by the blizzard, the Bruins and Rangers entrained for Montreal and Toronto, respectively, yesterday. The Klapper Kids hope to register their third victory of the season over the Canucks on Forum ice, while the Broadwayites are confident of breaking Toronto's undefeated streak, which dates back to their last visit to the Queen City Dec. 13.

Some interesting and startling data has been compiled during the first half of the NHL campaign.

First off, let's look over what the Detroit Red Wings have done. They are in second place, only one game behind the Maple Leafs, with 37 points.

The Wings have been a soft touch for Rangers. They have but one victory plus a tie to show for their six games with the New Yorkers, which, of course, gave them only three out of a possible 12 points. And, they've compiled the same number of points in four games against Canadiens. In six games with Toronto, the Motor City team had one win, two defeats and three ties. So all they have to show for 16 games against Rangers, Canadiens and the Maple Leafs are three wins and five ties, which they cashed in for 11 points.

Are you beginning to get what I'm driving at? To wit, how could a club, which wins only 11 points in 16 games, amass a total of 37 in 29 starts. Mirrors, brothers, mirrors.

The Red Wings have played a total of 13 games against Chicago and Boston. They have beaten the Hawks eight straight and the Bruins five in a row—and there's the answer—26 points.

If they had been as successful against the lowly Blackhawks as they were with the second place Detroiters the Rangers would have opened a wide gap between themselves and the Bruins. They've been on the winning end of only one out of four games with the Windy City aggregation and each of the three setbacks were a break for the Bruins but were rough on the morale of the Bouchermen.

The pre-season predictions placed Les Canadiens as serious contenders to top the NHL again. The Canucks haven't come up to expectations by a long shot. At this stage of the 1946-47 season, the Frenchmen's record on home ice was 11 wins, two defeats (both by Rangers) and two ties.

Celts, Caps Tangle In 3d of Series

The Boston Celtics wind up their two-game road trip tonight in Washington where they will meet the Caps for the third time this campaign.

After dropping a 48-58 decision to the Bombers in St. Louis Thursday night, the Russellmen have hopes of breaking even on this short trip.

They will be after their third straight win over the Caps. In an earlier contest in Washington, they won 73-69 and in a Garden tussle, the Celts had little trouble running up a 92-81 score.

KC Five Plays Over Ice Rink

CHICAGO, Jan 3 (AP)—The playing court anchored on ice, Holy Cross, N. C. A. A. champion, will tackle De Paul University and Georgetown will meet Loyola in a college basketball doubleheader at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

The twin bill will start a few hours after Sonja Henie ends a Sunday matinee of her current ice show and workmen fix a basketball floor on the frozen stadium rink.

Holy Cross last night suffered its second defeat in 30 games, losing at St. Louis University, 61-46. De Paul's Blue Demons own a 7-2 record, bowing to Kentucky and Minnesota.

Loyola (11-3) will be seeking to avenge an earlier 54-45 defeat by Georgetown which snapped a nine-game winning streak by the Chicago Ramblers.

Weary Olympics Return

The leg-weary Boston Olympics, losers of two games in as many nights, return home for a pair of week-end games with Eastern League competition.

Tonight they meet the New York Rovers at the Arena, and tomorrow night they face the Baltimore Clippers at the same place. In addition to counting in the Eastern League standings, tonight's contest will also affect the Quebec Senior League.

Rovers and Pics have played four times this winter, each having won a pair. All games were decided by one goal.

Ronnie Rowe, regular left winger for coach Hago Harrington's locals last year, will face his former mates as he plays with the Rovers tonight. Rowe, who is playing great hockey for the New Yorkers, finished third among the loop's leading scorers last year.

Pat Boehmer will be back in the nets for the Pics this weekend, according to Hago. Pat left for home last week for a rest.

The O's dropped their second straight game in as many nights to the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, 9-5. Tomorrow's contest will be their fourth in four nights.

CAVALIERI TO PRESENT O'MELIA TROPHY

Jim Cavalieri, one of Holy Cross' famed "Grand Opera ends," will make the presentation of the O'Melia Trophy to Bobby Sullivan at the dinner of the Holy Cross Club of Boston in the Harvard Club, Thursday, Jan. 8.

Cavalieri, native of East Boston and now assistant coach at Arlington High School, was Sullivan's coach at Johnson High School, North Andover. He also developed Bobby's brothers, Tom and Ray Sullivan, both of whom have made Holy Cross football history.

Cavalieri teamed with Tony Collucci to comprise the "Grand Opera ends" and he was a predecessor to Capt. Edward J. O'Melia, in whose name the trophy is awarded to the outstanding player of the Holy Cross-Boston College football game.

Motion pictures of the Holy Cross victory over North Carolina State in the Sugar Bowl basketball game will be shown at the dinner.

DiMaggio in Secret Huddle With Yankees

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—The New York Yankees and Joe DiMaggio have opened negotiations on the salary the star outfielder is to receive for the 1948 season.

But just how far apart they are at this point can only be a matter of conjecture. Both parties have agreed to maintain a strict silence until a final agreement is reached, club secretary Arthur (Red) Patterson revealed yesterday.

Patterson admitted negotiations were underway in replying, in a statement from the Yankee offices, to a report that DiMaggio was demanding $75,000 for a 1948 contract.

"The Yankees," said the statement, "do not deny that they have entered into contract negotiations with DiMaggio and others. It has been mutually agreed by DiMaggio and General Manager George Weiss that no publicity will be given on any details. The Yankees, therefore, have no comment to make on reports mentioning specific salary terms.

"Contracts are being forwarded to some players on the Yankee squad. Others, who plan visits to New York, will discuss terms personally with the general manager."

DiMaggio, winner of the American League's most valuable player award for 1947, is in town for the holidays. He concurred in the announcement that his negotiations with the club would be conducted in secrecy. When he accepts terms, the club will make the announcement.

Most baseball men believe the big fellow will be satisfied if he can get somewhere close to $60,000. He received $42,00 last season.

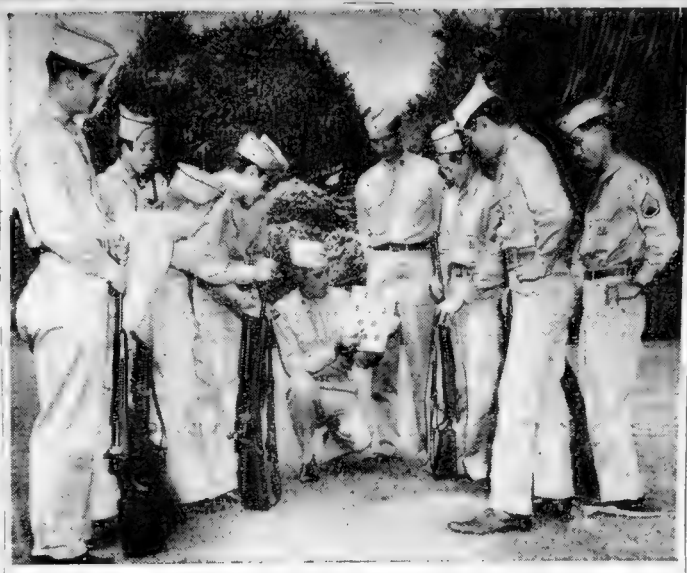
The first of the New Year's callers at the Yankee offices was Charlie Keller, convalescing outfielder who is planning a strong comeback following a spinal operation last summer. Keller, here for a final medical checkup, plans to leave Monday to join George Stirnweiss in the latter's baseball school at Bartow, Fla.

At the same time the contract statement was issued, the Yankees denied a report that Edward G. Barrow, who directed the club during the Ruppert regime, was returning to serve in an executive capacity. Barrow retired as president when the Larry MacPhail syndicate purchased the organization three years ago.

Patterson said Dan Topping, who has been president since he and Del Webb purchased MacPhail's one-third interest last October, had telephoned from Florida to say the reports are "utterly unfounded." Weiss will remain in complete charge of all baseball activities of the club, Topping said.

Lynn Gridders to Get February Recess Trip

The football squad of Lynn Classical and Lynn English will be heading for an educational junket come the February holidays, it was learned with the announcement by the Lynn school committee that an appropriation of $5500 for each school had been voted.



TRAINING FOR HEARSTS—Sharp-shooting cadets of the U. of Hawaii, under Major Victor E. Warner, Jr., train for the Hearst Rifle Matches in Honolulu. The University has entered three teams in the senior groups this season. A record-breaking entry list of approximately 1000 teams is predicted in this historical event which is now in its 27th consecutive year.

Over 900 Army, Navy Teams Entered in Hearst Rifle Shoot

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (INS)—With all previous records for participation already shattered, official firing has begun in the 27th annual William Randolph Hearst national rifle matches in educational institutions throughout the country.

More than 900 Army teams representing 304 schools are already enrolled in the competition. There are 74 naval teams officially competing at the present date. The previous high total from both branches of the armed service reached in the 1946-47 matches was 943 teams.

Enthusiastic cooperation is being accorded this event, considered the greatest of all inter-scholastic competitions, by the Army and Navy. Practically every educational institution having an ROTC unit universities, colleges, military academies and high schools—is competing from all sections of the country as well as far off possessions such as Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The University of Illinois, of Champaign, Ill., is holder of the 1946-47 championship among universities and colleges. Hill Military Academy, of Portland Ore., is defending the title among essentially military schools and the Christian Brothers' Academy team from Albany, N. Y., are present champions in the high school class.

Among the naval units, sharpshooters from the University of Washington, in Seattle, are now making determined efforts to hold the championship title which they won in the 1946-47 matches.

Official firing started Dec. 1. The competition must be completed by February 15 of next year in all six army areas as well as in schools having naval cadets. The punctured targets are then submitted to the Army and Navy Departments and officially checked. Winning teams, as well as individual champions, are officially announced by the Army and Navy Departments under whose direction the competition is conducted.

Hearst trophies and medals will be awarded to first place winners in each of the three classes in all army areas. Sectional individual champions will be named as well as the top-notch national sharpshooter. The naval units throughout the country compete as a single group with the championship team and individual marksmen being awarded honors and prizes.

The Hearst marksmanship competition started in 1921 and has been an annual outstanding event in the ROTC training program since that time. It is highly praised by army and navy authorities not only as importantly contributing to the cause of national defense but also in effectively serving to build up and maintain an esprit de corps among the many thousands of ROTC cadets in schools.

Teams and individual champions will receive their awards in patriotic ceremonies to be staged by winning schools following the official announcement of winners of local and national honors.

3 Maine Teams Enter Hearst Rifle Competition

As in the past, entries from out of state have been flooding the offices of the governing board of the eighth annual William Randolph Hearst marksmanship competition and presently all New England states, with the exception of Connecticut, which is under the supervision of New York, will be represented.

Three rifle clubs from Lewiston, Me., have entered teams in the competition. They include the Auburn Legion Club, the Auburn Rifle Club and the Le Cercle Canadien team that is coached by Leon Marois. The Legion Club is coached by J. Gahagua while the Auburn Rifle team is under the instruction of Robert Wolf.

There is not too much time remaining to file entries for applications will not be accepted after Jan. 8.

There is a blank nearby and a gun club may enter as many teams as is desired with the only stipulation being that an individual may fire with only one team.

Top-Ranking Amateurs Swell Net Tourney Lists

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—The list of entries for the Dixie Tennis Tournament was swelled to 19 today with the addition of Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, fourth ranking U. S. amateur; Dick Gonzales, of Los Angeles, who upset Mulloy in the Sugar Bowl Tournament, and Sidney Schwartz, University of Miami student from Brooklyn who holds the National Junior Indoor championship.

The 21st annual event will open Monday and run through Sunday, Jan. 11.

3d-Base Coach Trials Told By Simmons

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—"The third-base coach has the most thankless job in baseball," says Al Simmons, who performs that chore for the Philadelphia Athletics.

The former American League batting champion, spending a winter holiday here, took time out from his duties as third-base coach—in a charity game to talk about the woes of his job.

"Bucketfoot Al," however, wouldn't trade his job with all its heartaches for a minor league manager's post although he's had plenty of offers since he last played in the majors in 1944.

"You've got to know your baserunner," he said explaining his job. "That's fundamental. But also you've got to know the outfielder who is playing the ball and the man handling the relay when you make your decision at third."

Without revealing names, he said there are some shortstops in the American League on whom he would take a chance.

"But not on Lou Boudreau (of Cleveland) or Eddie Lake (of Detroit). Those boys can make that relay from the outfield and they have strong arms."

When it's a matter of sending a man home from first on a double, there's another problem.

"Most fans don't know it," Simmons said, "but there are few men in the majors who can run from first to home at top speed. Most of them slow down a little between third and home."

So, while a runner is legging it around the base paths, the outfielder fielding the ball and the shortstop starting out to make the relay, the coach at third has got to add, subtract and multiply speed afoot, skill in handling the ball, strength of throwing arms, the score, the number of outs and how good his luck is that day and make his decision.

"And," said Simmons, "no matter what you do, if it's wrong, the fans are on your neck."

Ban Hockey Team For Player Protest

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 3 (AP) The Canadian Sault Greyhounds hockey team has been suspended from the Northern Michigan - Wisconsin - Ontario Hockey League. The team gained top spot in the league by tying the Portage Lake (Mich.) Falcons, 6-6, Thursday night.

Reason given for the suspension was the Greyhounds' refusal to play against Tony Butkovich, former American Hockey League player suspended for allegedly breaking a contract with the Cleveland Barons. Members of the Greyhounds said they felt that by performing against an unqualified player they might jeopardize their chances to participate in the Northern Ontario Hockey Ass'n championship series next spring.

The game was played without Butkovich.

CANADIANS GIVE COLORADO HOCKEY TEAM

Eyebrows lifted when Colorado College ran those tremendous scores against Harvard's varsity hockey team. Twenty-three goals in two games, 13-6, 10-3, is a bit too much to digest without expecting an answer.

Colorado, according to report, lifted an entire team from Canada and sent it into competition under Colorado colors. Certainly it is extremely doubtful if a Canadian college team, and this includes, McGill, Toronto Varsity, Queen's and St. Michael's could amass that number of goals against the Crimson in two straight games.

There are two Americans on the Colorado team, Chris Ray of Belmont, who weighed 92 pounds as a schoolboy and was all-scholastic center, and another player from Evelith, Minn., are the only homebreds on the team. Fifteen other Colorado players hail from Canada.

Those Canucks didn't go out there just to see the Grand Canyon. Maybe the American A. A. U., which has taken a sudden and surprising interest in amateur hockey, could ask Colorado College authorities some pointed questions.

Yale, Penn Crews Duel In Lake Worth Regatta

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—Crews of Pennsylvania and Yale meet in a regatta on Lake Worth today before an expected crowd of 20,000 in an event that is a distinct novelty to South Florida where pari-mutuel sports predominate.

JOHN B. KELLY, JR.
Competes In Florida Today

The four-oared varsity crews of the universities will compete over the olympic distance of 2000 meters as the concluding event on the program. The race is set for 4:30 p. m. (EST).

The junior varsities will clash earlier and prior to that, John B. Kelly, Jr., world champion sculler and winner of the AAU's Sullivan Award as 1947's outstanding amateur athlete, will oppose Harry Payne Whitney and Richard Krementz, Jr., of Yale, in a single sculls event. Kelly is on the Pennsylvania squad and is expected to be a big gun for the United States in the coming Olympics.

The program will start at 2:30 p. m. with water stunting and skiing. There will be a pair-oared race in which Bill Jessup, Craig Shealy and Coxswain Al Edwards, in the Yale boat, will meet Elmer Heinel, John Seigal and Coxswain John Stern in the Penn shell.

Lake Worth is a usually calm body of water separating West Palm Beach and Palm Beach and is fringed with palms, Australian pines and millionaires' estates.

Corum Names Cranford Best of Young Heavies

By BILL CORUM

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (INS)—Blond Jackie Cranford, the Senator Clout of Washington, D. C., may not be the best young heavyweight around, but he still looks best in our crystal ball.

The Senator dumped Bernie Reynolds, out of Fairfield, Ct., on the seat of his white silk panties in the Garden last night and left him there to chill.

True enough, Bernie didn't appear to have any burning and yearning desire to continue the controversy. In fact, from where I sat it looked as though Cranford discouraged Bernard rather thoroughly with one clout in the breadbasket in the first heat.

Possibly Reynolds had been fed too well and made too merry over the holiday. While he did take a couple of solid smacks on the whiskers—a sharp right followed by a left hook as he teetered and tottered—Reynolds showed no signs of being a fellow who meant to stay in there come what came.

It was any old port in a storm for Bernie and when tagged, he listed to port and sank without a trace.

Obviously Reynolds is a wooden-nutmeg as far as heavyweight championship timber goes for the time being. He isn't even big enough, to begin with.

Cranford is no giant himself, having come in at 181. But he remains the best looking young prospect we've seen.

We discussed Jackie with Dock Kearns, Jack Hurley, who used to pull the throttle on the Fargo Express; Hymie Caplin and others after the fight.

None of them seemed to share our enthusiasm. Yet when we asked them to name a better looking boy, aside from one in whom they might have a personal interest, we weren't snowed under with names.

The provision about leaving any tiger out of their own out of the discussion was particularly important in the case of Kearns. For the doctor will unleash his Joey Maxim against Olle Tanberg, the syndicated Swede, in the Garden next Friday night.

We call Olle the syndicated Swede because he is managed by a newspaper man from Stockholm, who refuses to give out any news about him until it has been syndicated in Sweden.

Just the same, I repeat that I haven't seen a young heavy around who looks better than Cranford if he'll work at his trade. He looks, at least, normally fast, boxes adequately and should hit harder as he matures and gets heavier. Which he gives indication of doing.

They say he dosn't take a punch too well. Which the fact that a couple of ordinary heavies have batted him out would seem to prove. But he has lived through that slump without losing interest.

He may also, as Caplin points out, learn to hold his chin in such a way that it won't be as easy to hit, or be as vulnerable when it is.

If that last part sounds confusing, Hymie simply says that keeping the chin down and the neck muscles taut makes it easier to take a punch. That sounds reasonable enough.

Les M'Mitchell In Comeback At Met. Games

NEW YORK, Jan 3 (AP)—With 930 athletes entered in 17 events, the Olympic year track and field competition will get under way tonight at 22nd Regiment Armory under sponsorship of the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union.

Two main features of the meet, designed to help prepare local athletes for the Metropolitan senior championships Jan. 17, are the John J. Diegnan Memorial 600 and an invitation two-mile limited handicap.

The two-mile affair will mark the comeback bid of Les MacMitchell, who dominated the indoor mile field in 1946, but won only two races last year. MacMitchell, with Vic Dyrgall, Millrose A. A. distance star, will start from scratch, conceding up to 150 yards to 12 others.

Reginald Pearman of New York University, National AAU half-mile champion, heads five starters entered in the Deignan 600. He will be joined by a teammate from NYU, Jim Gilhooley; Roscoe Brown, Pioneer Club; Warren Bright, City College of New York Metropolitan 600 champ; and Jim Herbert, Grand Street Boys' Club, former indoor record holder at the distance.

Inexperienced Skiers Represent Turks in Olympics

ISTANBUL, Jan. 3 (AP)—A team of six skiers, totally inexperienced in international competition, will represent Turkey at the winter Olympic games in Switzerland starting Jan. 30.

The best any of them have done thus far was to become champion of his own province, but there is optimism here that against more experienced competition the Turks will make a creditable showing.

Coaches trained in Switzerland are grooming the team on the slopes near Bursa and Kayseri. The leading member is Ahmet Gray. Others on the team are Muzaffer Ozdemir, Dursun Bozkurt, Osman Yce, Kerami Sakarya and Rasit Tolun.

Winter sports have few participants here compared with the popular games like football and swimming. The chief reason is that areas where good runs are available are far removed from population centers and this denies a natural supply of skiers and experts in other forms of winter sports.

CAMBRIDGE LEGION PLAYS

Cambridge Legion basketballers will be attempting to pin its second defeat on the Redberry Council, K of C, five when they meet at the Dorchester High School for Girls tonight.

Snow Train, Started in '31, Resumes Operations Here

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Skiing is now recognized as the greatest participant sport in the country, next to fishing and hunting, and this section can point with pride to the fact that the popular pastime had its start here. New England skiers can also be justifiably proud of the Boston and Maine Snow Train, which, in our opinion, gave the "ski snowball" its initial shove 'way back in 1931, when some 200 enthusiasts, carrying snowshoes, slats, and hot water bags, were transported to the tiny hamlet of Warner, N. H., a picture postcard snow village.

The season's first regular Sunday Snow Train will head for North Conway, N. H., tomorrow, leaving the North Station at 8:10 a. m. With so much cover on local slopes, the crowd will not be a record one, but we advise everyone to allow more than ample time to reach the station.

Skiers will find several surprises awaiting them at Cranmore Mountain: the carrying capacity of the Skimobile has been doubled by the addition of twin-seated cars; a new "Beginner's Trail" has been slashed through the woods on the South Slope; and Phil Robertson has announced that every Sunday, effective the rest of the winter, full-day or half-day tickets only will be available. In order to relieve congestion, no single-ride tickets will be sold.

It is interesting to note that the number of passengers using the Skimobile has increased from around 100,000 during the winter of 1940-'41, to 400,000 for last season. Skiing is a big business.

Nearest tow outside of North Conway may be found at Intervale, where Dick Stimpson is running the facilities on his steep slopes.

SKI TRACKS: The Eastern Inter-Club Ski League will swing into action tomorrow, the group holding the first of its informal races for teams. At Laconia, N. H., the Lynn Snow Chasers will compete against the Ridgetop Club of Waltham, and the Piscataqua Club of Portsmouth, N. H. . . . At Plymouth, N. H., the Black and Blue Trail Smashers of Lowell; the Hochfliegers of the same city, and the Old Colony racers from Quincy will match skills on the slippery slats. Thus, recreational skiers will be given a taste of competition.

First official entry we have received for the Walter Foley Memorial Slaloms, set for Locke's Hill, Amesbury, Jan. 24-25, comes from Paul E. O'Toole of the Boston College Ski and Outing Club, who formerly served in the Mountain Troops at Camp Hale, Col. All unclassifed skiers, men and women, are eligible for these big events. Entries are free.

Although it hasn't been mentioned, Francis "Sarge" Sargent, new director of the Mass. Div. of Marine Fisheries, is an erstwhile Ski Trooper. "I don't know which I'd rather do—fish for stripers or ski!" he declared . . . Fortunately for Sarge, the seasons don't conflict, so he is able to enjoy both sports, but his new duties will keep him very busy, particularly pursuing the bass seiners. And let's hope he employs 10th Mountain Division methods!

Note to a few of the local and suburban tow operators: Why not have ski patrolmen at your slopes? Controlled skiing must be enforced!

Heavies Feature Amateur Fight Bill

Heavyweight John J. Kiley, Chelsea, has filed an entry for the open competition in the amateur boxing programs to be held at Mechanics Building Monday night by the South End A. C.

Other top weight fighters entered will be Sal Fichera, Lawrence, and Lou Thresher, North End.

This show will introduce the new Development Program of the New England AAU, with competition open to "pures" who have never won a prize in any type of fight show. Special prizes will be offered by the NEAAU in the 126, 135, 147 and heavyweight classes.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias Joins Sportsmen's Show

A star-studded bill of entertainment has been signed for the 24th annual New England Sportsmen's and Boat Show to be staged at Mechanics Building, Jan. 31 through Feb. 8, under the sponsorship and operation of the Campbell-Fairbanks Expositions.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, greatest woman athlete of all time, is to headline the best array of sports events ever outlined for this big show, which each year plays to more than 180,000 persons here.

She will be guest of honor at the luncheon of the New England Outdoor Writers Ass'n to be held at Hotel Statler the opening day of the show when more than 100 outdoor sports writers of New England will be guests of Sheldon H. Fairbanks, president of the Campbell-Fairbanks Expositions.

Sharkey, the only talking seal in the world, will again be a headliner and will have on display for the patrons many new stunts and tricks.

New comers to the Sportsmen's and Boat Show will be the Skating Earls, unequalled in the presentation of straight skating and comedy stunts. Also new to the New England Sportsmen's Shows will be Gypsy, Bang, Cap and Curly, retrieving dogs of Clarence Hauwiller, said to be the most remarkable retrievers ever shown at any show.

Bud Carlell and Rose, champion Boomerang and Australian Whip manipulators, are likewise newcomers to this country. Their act has proven sensational in Europe and "Down Under." Then still another new act is that of Russ Dotson and His Diving Collegians, the sensations of the Atlantic City Steel Pier of last season.

In the act are Russ Dotson of the University of Iowa, Jim Smith of the University of Kansas and Josephine Knox of Wisconsin University.

The world's champion high tower or pole diver, Buddy Siegel of Kansas, is featured also in this unusual act. Siegel is the holder of the official world mark for high tower diving. From the height of 151½ feet above the water in Wichita, Kan., he won this title.

Park Quintets Open Campaign

Boston Park Department basketball will open up tonight at 10 municipal gymnasia. Tonight's will be the 20th inaugural of the Park hoop program, and under Park Commissioner John J. Murphy's direction, 140 10-club leagues are set to bid for citywide titles.

In a change from past years, due to the 100 per cent increase in the number of clubs wishing to compete in the top levels of the department's organization, only the Park and Varsity circuits, with four 10-club divisions each, will play on Saturday nights.

The Conference league, with five 10-club loops, will operate on Wednesday nights. The campaigns will run for nine consecutive weeks, and during the 10th week, playoffs for citywide titles in all classes will be held. Formerly, the Park and Varsity leagues, rated fastest in the court program, were operated in two divisions, East and West. This year, the two circuits will be conducted with four scheduled divisions, North, South, East and West, with special semi-final playoffs scheduled at the end of the season.

Girls' Teams Play On Peres' Card

Jim Tabor's league-leading Pere Marquette five from South Boston will be out to strengthen its lead in the South Shore Basketball League tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Hingham Legion Post at the South Boston Municipal Building, at 2:45 o'clock.

In the preliminary contest, scheduled for 2 p. m., St. Brigid's Girls' team plays the South Boston Girls' Club quintet.

Rousing Welcome For Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 3 (AP)—State College residents today planned a big welcome for the undefeated Penn State football team upon its return home from the Cotton Bowl game.

The High School band will greet Coach Bob Higgins and his Nittany Lions at the railroad station tomorrow noon and then take them on a victorious tour of this Pennsylvania college town. Merchants have gone all out with a display of welcome home placards.

The celebration was planned in the absence of the college's 8500 students who will not return from Christmas vacation until class time Monday.

The Lions tied Southern Methodist University 13-13 New Year's Day at Dallas.

MAN MOUNTAIN, 56, JOURNALISM MAJOR

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 3 (INS)—Wrestler man Mountain Dean feels that his vocabulary should be more in keeping with his size.

And so the gargantuan grunt-and-groan artist has enrolled as a journalism major at the Atlanta branch of the University of Georgia.

Fifty-six-year-old Dean has a good reason for swapping the athletic for the scholastic, however. He's going to write a book called "The Hell's Kitchen Hillbilly."

It'll be written about the biggest subject he's familiar with—himself.

Dodds 'Better Than Ever', Says B.C.'s Veteran Coach

Champion miler Gil Dodds, the Boston A. A.'s famed Flying Parson, is back in training and, according to Jack Ryder, his veteran coach, he is "better than ever."

That bespectacled 29-year-old runner, last beaten during the summer of 1943, now is priming himself for the winter's major indoor meets under his 70-year-old tutor, who has seen proteges win the amazing total of 93 national titles during his long career.

"I never have seen Gil in better shape getting back into training," Ryder said. "When he first showed up at Boston College early this week, he had to help shovel the snow off our outdoor board track. Then he stepped out and did a practice "600" in 1:13.8.

"During his third workout, I caught Gil in 3:03 for three-quarters. That's the best I ever saw him do in practice. I doubt that he will find anyone in this country to push him hard during the coming indoor season."

That veteran, however, was unable to enthuse over Dodd's Olympic plans.

"Gil is the best bet this country has from 1500 to 10,000 meters," Ryder boasted. But then he agreed that Sweden has at least four stars who can run away from Dodds in the metric mile and that there are at least three times that many in Europe who would lose him in the longer distances.

"Dodds must show startling improvement to hope for an Olympic title," Ryder admitted. "I'm praying he'll do it."

Between indoor track seasons, Dodds, the father of two, is affiliated with Wheaton College in Illinois. Most of his time is devoted to preaching to juvenile audiences. But he does not permit his training to interfere with his vocation. Last night he addressed a Concord, N. H., audience and tonight he is scheduled to speak in Rochester, N. H.

"Great as Dodds is over the mile distance, I'm certain the two-mile would be his best event," Ryder continued. "Six years ago he ran a practice two-mile for me in 8:53 but he never has been anywhere near that since.

Last season he tried both events the same night, in the New York Knights of Columbus meet. He ran a 4:07 mile an hour or so before winning the two-mile in 9:15 or so."

"His tremendous endurance and power stamp him as an outstanding two-mile prospect but since he is the nation's top miler, I suppose the promoters of the major meets as well as the track followers will continue to insist that he stick to that shorter and much more popular distance," Ryder lamented.

Ryder predicts that Bill Hulse, former New York University star who won the Sugar Bowl feature event in stylish time early this week, will be Dodds, most threatening rival this winter.

Hulse is the last American to show his heels to the flying parson, back in August 1943 in Berea, Ohio. Hulse and Dodds were touring with Sweden's great Gunder Haegg and on that day "der vunder" ran a 4:05.3 mile, Hulse was second in 4:06 and Dodds was clocked in 4:06.1.

"Hulse never will beat Dodds with another 4:06 race," Ryder insisted. "I'll be greatly disappointed if Gil doesn't break 4:04 after a couple of competitive starts for I'm certain this will be his greatest season."

Darkhorse Paces Los Angeles Open; Hogan Tied for 2d

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3 (AP)—Paced by a 33-year-old professional and ex-Army sergeant from El Paso, Jack Harden, and with such favorites as Ben Hogan and Bobby Locke within striking range, the 22nd annual $10,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament swung into the second round today at Riviera Country Club.

The surprising Harden, non-winner of a major tournament in his 10 years in golf, pulled the perennial darkhorse feat in grabbing the spotlight in the first round with nicely matched nine-hole scores of 33-34—67—four shots under par 35-36—71.

Still another unknown, Bill Spiller, former Los Angeles Redcap startled the record opening day gallery of 8500 with a 36-32—68, and then last year's winner, Little Ben Hogan, came in with the same card.

Locke and former U. S. National Open champion Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, next to last to go out, managed to finish the round before complete darkness closed in, both shooting 70's, one stroke behind Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, Kan., who won the Los Angeles fixture in 1935 in a playoff with Johnny Revolta.

Even with par in the first round were Jimmy Demaret, Ellsworth Vines and Ed Furgol.

McKenley, Hulse Run in Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The 1948 indoor track season opens tonight with 220 athletes from 33 colleges competing in the Washington Evening Star games.

The best events probably will be the 600-yard run, starring Herb McKenley, and the mile run, with Bill Hulse of the New York A. C.

McKenley, the Jamaican who won the National A. A. U. 400-meter championship last year, is expected to get plenty of competition from such runners as Barry Reed of Holy Cross and Royce Crimmin of Brown.

Hulse, who exactly a week ago set a new Sugar Bowl record for the 1500-meter run, will be tested by such milers as Jack Milne of North Carolina, Southern Conference champion, George Troxel of Virginia and William Berger of Columbia.

Sharp Decline in Boxing Receipts

STORY ON PAGE 18

YEA, Charlestown—One of the two moments Charlestown High supporters had to cheer in today's hockey at Arena. Here's Ed Celata turning back from net after making solo scoring dash in second period of game with East Boston. Eastie's goalie, Jim Joyce, on ice, made valiant if futile try to prevent score. Final—Eastie 6, Charlestown 2. (Story on Page 18.)

Medford 4, Stoneham 2

By MIKE GILLOOLY

BOSTON ARENA, Jan. 3—Medford High School's perch atop the Greater Boston Hockey League standings was violently shaken here this afternoon but the Mustangs eventually shook off the Stoneham threat to rack up a 4-to-2 triumph before 3500 enthusiastic fans, the best Saturday crowd of the season.

In the other half of the opening twin bill, a 3-round boxing bout, Newton High School edged by Cambridge Latin 4 to 3 amid lusty lefts and rights.

Medford High School, shooting for its fourth straight in league competition, had a merry time for itself for half the game while pulling away to a 2-0 margin. But then the Manley brothers, Marty and Dick, opened up with some close-range firing on gang-up plays and it was an entirely new game.

The Manleys, cutting Pete D'Annolfo in for a share of the pudding, punched in the equalizers in the space of 20-rapid seconds. They were still rampaging at the Medford nets when Andy Gaffey broke loose, chased across mid-ice for a loose puck and went in alone to beat goalie Mike Corbett as the Mustangs pulled ahead once again.

MEDFORD VS. STONEHAM

FIRST PERIOD

Medford's Bill McNair lost the puck inside the Stoneham blue line but Andy Gaffey picked it up and punched it into the strings on a neat lift. A minute later, the Mustangs had another on a penalty shot by Charlie Abele, incurred by Stoneham's Paul Norden.

Score: Medford 2, Stoneham 0.

SECOND PERIOD

With less than three minutes of play remaining, Stoneham stormed all over the Medford territory. The tactics paid off as the Manley brothers, Marty and Dick, collected. First it was Dick, skirting the defense after a pass from Marty. Then it was Marty on a sideboard feeder from Pete D'Annolfo to tie the score. Medford's Gaffey broke away, however, to skate in alone on the Stoneham nets to break the deadlock.

Score: Medford 3, Stoneham 2.

THIRD PERIOD

Medford's reserves broke into the scoring as Mike Toperzer trapped at the back boards, managed to clear to Bill Ford for a quick snap into the strings. This marker, at 3:08, lifted the pressure as the Mustangs held off without too much trouble the rest of the way.

Final Score: Medford 4, Stoneham 2.

CAMBRIDGE LATIN VS. NEWTON

FIRST PERIOD

Hard hitting typified the period as each team, in between checks and slashes, racked up a pair of scores. For Newton, it was Billy Fitzpatrick and Phil Jepson who punched the fishnets, while Latin's markers both came from the stick of Dick Rigarzio.

Score: Newton 2, Cambridge Latin 2.

SECOND PERIOD

The play became rougher as the teams warmed up to the competition and fist fights popped up everywhere. Newton managed to get three of its players into the jug, although a couple more passed unnoticed. While Latin wound up with two roughing penalties. In the midst of the penalizing, Jim Coyle slipped a shot through Goalie Dick Heavern's legs as Newton forged ahead.

Score: Newton 3, Latin 2.

THIRD PERIOD

Battling subsided and Newton chalked up another as Dan Keefe punched home a Coyle passout. Latin's Rigarzio made up for this with his third score of the afternoon but Latin couldn't manage to come up with an equalizer.

Final: Newton 4, Latin 3.

Muckerman To Meet Prospective Buyer

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 3 (AP)— came no closer to making a real bid than a letter full of big figures and a long talk with Muckerman's attorney, James V. Dunbar.

Then reecntly came Bob Rodenberg, the Baltimore sportsman, who also never got around to seeing Muckerman and gave up on the deal at least temporarily after a visit here.

George F. Kinkead, Louisville, KY., business man and the latest to declare an interest in purchasing the St. Louis Browns, arranged today to hold a conference next week with Richard C. Muckerman, owner of the American League franchise.

"Mr. Kinkead called and wanted to meet today," Muckerman disclosed. "However, due to many other meetings I had scheduled, it was impossible to hold a conference today so we agreed to get together sometime next week."

Kinkead is the first of three would-be purchasers of the Browns to go as far as arranging to hold a direct talk with Muckerman.

Last summer Emory C. Perry of Chicago came up with a proposal to buy the Brownies, but
